The following list consists of scholarship search sites. Each website has its own features that make searching for scholarships easier. Students should check out a few websites to see which one fulfills their needs in scholarship searching.

External Scholarships Websites

International Scholarships

http://www.internationalscholarships.com/

The International Scholarship Search is the premier financial aid, college scholarship and international scholarship resource for students wishing to study abroad. At this site, you will find the most comprehensive listing of grants, scholarships, loan programs, and other information to assist college and university students in their pursuit to study abroad.

Career One Stop-Pathways to Career Success

http://www.acinet.org/

Students should be able to find many scholarships using this website. They do not have to set up an account to use the website. Rather, simply enter a few pieces of information and a list of possible scholarship matches is the result. Next to each scholarship listed there is a short description detailing what materials and needed and when they are due. In addition, if the information is available it also lists the number of awards handed out. The search yields lots of results so students are required to read a lot of information but many viable scholarships are available through the website.

Scholarship Experts

http://www.scholarshipexperts.com/

The Scholarship Experts website is very user friendly in its simplicity and because it does not send many emails to the user. Students do not have to create an account to search for scholarships on this website. Many of the scholarships listed are large national scholarships which are known to be very competitive but are worth more money than smaller scholarships.

The College Board

http://apps.collegeboard.com/

This is a good resource for students. The website is easy to navigate and searching for scholarships was simple. Students do not have to create an account to search for scholarships; they just give some basic information about themselves. Many of the scholarships listed show how many students apply each year and how many are actually awarded the scholarship a feature not found on many websites.
Do Something

http://www.dosomething.org/

This website lists many scholarships that focus on students that are heavily involved in volunteer work. Many of the scholarships listed do not have traditional application processes; instead lots have creative processes such as video responses. In addition, many of the scholarships are for project grants rather than individual scholarships. However, individual scholarships are available and students involved in their community and volunteering should search this website.

Fastweb
http://www.fastweb.com/

Students must create an account to search this site. Fastweb goes beyond lots of scholarship searching sites. It has information on jobs, military involvement, and student life among other resources. For students looking for information relating to their whole college experience this is a valuable resource. Fastweb specifically lists many large national scholarships. Fastweb sends users emails when new scholarships they are eligible to apply for are available. This is a great feature for busy students that find it hard to keep up with new scholarship listings.

Find Tuition
http://www.findtuition.com/

Students are required to create an account to use the Find Tuition website. A unique feature about Find Tuition is that when students receive their search results at the top of the page they are shown how many scholarships match their profile and the total worth of those scholarships. Another great feature is that under each scholarship listed is the name of the sponsor of the scholarship. Therefore, if scholarships are available through specific colleges students will be able to see right away and know they are not eligible. A user friendly brief description of each scholarship may be seen if users simply hover over the scholarship name with their cursor. These simple features really add to the scholarship searching process and make Find Tuition stand out.

Kaarme
http://kaarme.com/

Students are allowed to look up scholarships without creating an account or registering. However, students may choose to set up an account if they prefer to do so. A particularly helpful feature of the Kaarme website is that students can look up scholarships listed by specific majors. This tool is really helpful for students who have already declared. There is a lot of information on Kaarme. Students will certainly have to take their time when searching here, but many viable scholarships could be found.
