Scholarships Administered by the College of Literature, Science, and the Arts

Scholarship Office

This site lists the scholarships administered by the College of LSA. Included are the criteria that established the scholarship and biographical information on the donor or donors if available. Prospective students are considered for all scholarships on this website unless otherwise indicated. The application for admission is sufficient for award consideration, no further application is required. Awards are renewable for up to four consecutive years provided the recipients maintain full-time enrollment in the College of LSA and meet all academic and scholarship requirements outlined in the Scholarship Response Form. Current students require a separate on-line application found in the LSA Current Student Scholarship Program (check back the beginning of January for application details). This program provides scholarships that are not renewable to qualified LSA sophomores, juniors, and seniors who have demonstrated financial need as determined by the Office of Financial Aid.

The LSA Scholarship Committee holistically reviews the Undergraduate Admissions Applications of admitted students to determine at a minimum: academic talent and motivation, personal achievement, extracurricular activities, state and/or national awards, community service, leadership qualities, and academic potential. Essays and counselor and teacher recommendations are also significant factors in the review process. Other consideration may include students who are the first generation to attend college, come from a single-parent home, or have overcome adversity (and financial need when relevant). There is no formula to follow to be considered for a scholarship. These are examples of some qualities that the Scholarship Committee is looking for in the admissions application and should not be considered a checklist for award eligibility.

Satisfying the initial criteria listed on this web site does not guarantee that a student will be the recipient of an award. In many instances, a very limited number of students are able to be named as scholarship recipients for a particular award. Eligibility for out-of-state awards is contingent upon the student maintaining out-of-state residency status as defined by the University’s Residency Office.

Wilpon played baseball at the University of Michigan until an arm injury cut short his career, but a scholarship grant enabled him to continue attendance, Wilpon and his wife, Judy, of Locust Valley, NY, earned Bachelors of Art degree from U-M in 1958.

The Irene and Morris B. Kessler Presidential Scholarship Fund is named in honor of the parents of Judy Kessler Wilpon, Mickie Kessler Kivel, and Bonnie Kessler Dropkin. Their father, Dr. Morris Kessler, emigrated to the U.S. from Romania with his family when he was 12 years old. Although he did not speak a word of English when he arrived in the U.S. he earned his undergraduate degree from Northwestern University at age 19 and then earned a degree in dentistry.

While studying to be a dentist, Morris Kessler met Irene Nass, who was planning to become an elementary school teacher. Irene and Morris married after a whirlwind courtship at Wrigley Field and moved to the small town of Sebewaing, Michigan, where they started a family and Kessler began his practice. When the U.S. entered WWII, Kessler joined the Army Air Force. The family moved to Urbana, Illinois, until the war ended. They returned to Michigan where the Kessler girls all eventually graduated from LSA.

“Education has always been very important to my family,” said Judy Wilpon. “My parents didn’t have much money when my sisters and I attended college, so it was a struggle, but they were determined that their daughters receive a good education. It means so much to me to be able to provide scholarship support to students who need it. Fred and I have has such good fortune in our lives. DLA’s CEO described Jeff as “our soul and conscience,” an apt description for a man who led with integrity, collegiality, and balance. While directing an immensely respected legal practice, Jeff also proved how deeply he cared about public service. He encouraged the firm to invest heavily in its pro bono work, taught as an adjunct instructor at Michigan’s and Georgetown’s Law Schools, vetted cabinet appointees during the Clinton administration, advised Senator Kerry during the 2004 presidential campaign, and served on the board of the Baltimore Symphony. His love of sports resulted in his playing catcher in adult leagues and in attending the Baltimore Orioles fantasy camp. He also loved classical music. Jeff’s deepest passions, however, were reserved for his family and his alma mater, Michigan. Jeff met his wife, Susan at Michigan. He was immeasurably proud of their children, Joanna and Harrison (AB 2009). He volunteered relentlessly for Michigan, lecturing at the Law School, supporting the history department, and serving on the DC Campaign Advisory Committee during the Michigan Difference Campaign. He arranged extended “family”—incredibly loosely defined—reunions for the Michigan vs. Ohio State football game each year, both in Ann Arbor and Columbus, welcoming even OSU fans in the
