

GIVING TO THE MUSEUM OF ANTHROPOLOGY

Museum of Anthropology Funds provide critical resources to support undergraduate and graduate research and other scholarly and professional activities of the Museum. This document summarizes the 13 current gift and endowment funds that are based in the Museum. The majority of the Museum's fundraising efforts to date have been dedicated to the support of undergraduate and graduate students, and particularly to assist students to conduct field and laboratory research. This remains an important commitment of the Museum, and we are eager to expand all of these funds to help even more students gain firsthand experiences of the excitement and challenges of archaeological research. Along with our educational commitment, the Museum is also committed to the responsible care, documentation, and dissemination of information of the more than four million archaeological and ethnographic artifacts that we curate. We are eager to develop endowment support that will aid us in these missions.

Please consider making a gift to the University of Michigan Museum of Anthropology. For additional information on giving to the Museum, please contact Carla M. Sinopoli (sinopoli@umich.edu) or Judy Hartsuff (judyhart@umich.edu).

I. FUNDS DEDICATED TO THE SUPPORT OF UNDERGRADUATE STUDENTS IN ANTHROPOLOGICAL ARCHAEOLOGY:

- 1. James B. Griffin Undergraduate Research Fund: Even though he was not an anthropology concentrator, an anonymous donor was greatly influenced by coursework and fieldwork opportunities provided by Dr. Griffin. He made this donation so that other undergraduates could have similar experiences. This fund aids University of Michigan undergraduates engaging in anthropological archaeology fieldwork.
- 2. Carl E. Guthe Endowment: This fund honors Carl E. Guthe, the first director of the Museum of Anthropology and first chair of the University's Department of Anthropology. Supports undergraduate anthropological archaeology research, including fieldwork, laboratory analyses, and meeting attendance.

3. Richard I. Ford Undergraduate Research Fund: this fund was established in 2002 to provide educational opportunities to support Native American undergraduate students to conducting archaeological research; if no candidates meet these criteria for several years then the funds may be used to support other undergraduate students conducting archaeological research.
4. Christy Cogan Memorial Fund: established to honor the memory of Christy Cogan, a UM undergraduate student who died in an auto accident in 1961 while returning from UMMA excavations at the Juntenen site in northern Michigan. The fund provides support to UM undergraduate students conducting archaeological fieldwork in the United States.
5. Hays Family Undergraduate Research Fund: established by the Hays family in honor of Donald R. Hays, a prominent avocational archaeologist in Michigan and friend of James B. Griffin. This award recognizes the Hays family's interest in student participation in archaeological research and commitment to education, museums, and anthropology, by supporting UM undergraduate students pursuing research or field school experience in archaeology through the Museum of Anthropology.

II. FUNDS DEDICATED TO THE SUPPORT OF GRADUATE STUDENTS IN ANTHROPOLOGICAL ARCHAEOLOGY:

6. NEW GIVING OPPORTUNITY: Museum of Anthropology President's Challenge for Graduate Support: Beginning in Fall 2007, UM President Mary Sue Coleman has initiated a gift challenge program to enhance support for graduate students, pledging a 1:2 match for every dollar given to support graduate student research; thus your $50 give becomes $75; your $200 becomes $300, and so on. To establish an income-earning quasi-endowment, cumulative donations to the President's Challenge Fund must reach $10,000. You may designate your gift as either endowed or expendable; undesignated gifts are considered expendable under University guidelines. Funds from the President's Challenge will be used to support graduate student research in anthropological archaeology.
7. James B. Griffin Scholarship Fund: established in 1975 to honor Dr. Griffin on the occasion of his retirement as Director of the Museum of Anthropology. Resources from this fund support anthropological archaeology graduate student dissertation research at any stage until the completion of the degree.
8. James Bennett Griffin Fellowship: established by Dr. Griffin and his family to support a graduate student conducting archaeological research in the Eastern United States. The fellowship can cover tuition, room and board, field research expenses, and additional research necessities including equipment, radiocarbon dates, and other analytical needs.
9. Jane K. Sallade Memorial Fund: established to honor the memory of Jane Sallade, a doctoral student killed by a drunk driver in 1979. This fund provides resources to support graduate student women in anthropological archaeology.

10. Doreen Ozker Memorial Fund: Before returning to graduate school, Dr. Ozker raised a family and was active in community affairs. She completed her dissertation in the Museum of Anthropology and then served as its first director of Great Lakes Archaeological Services. This memorial fund is dedicated to the support of anthropological archaeology graduate students who have had a mid-life career change or an educational hiatus of at least five (5) years before beginning graduate school at the University of Michigan.

11. Linda Britton and John R. Halsey Great Lakes Research Fund: The Halsey family has a long personal and professional interest in the archaeology of the Great Lakes area. Linda Britton Halsey graduated from Michigan and served as editor of the Museum of Anthropology publications. Dr. John Halsey received two degrees in Anthropology from Michigan. He is the State Archaeologist for Michigan. This fund supports doctoral candidates conducting archaeological research in the Great Lakes (United States or Canada).

III. FUNDS DEDICATED TO THE SUPPORT OF BOTH UNDERGRADUATE AND GRADUATE STUDENTS IN ANTHROPOLOGICAL ARCHAEOLOGY:

12. Richard I Ford Endowment Fund: Created in honor of ethnology curator Richard I. Ford, this fund will provide resources for undergraduate or graduate students conducting anthropological research on diverse questions concerning humans and the environment.

13. Homeopathic Hospital Guild Scholarship: Dr. Wilbert B. Hinsdale was director of the University of Michigan Homeopathic Hospital, now North Hall. Upon his retirement in 1922, his staff honored him by creating a student scholarship to recognize his interest in the Indian people of Michigan. Dr. Hinsdale became the first Custodian of the Great Lakes in the newly created Museum of Anthropology in the same year. This fund is dedicated to the support of ethnological, ethnobotanical, sociological, and archaeological research about the Indians of Michigan.

IV. FUNDS THAT SUPPORT OTHER MUSEUM ACTIVITIES

14. Jeffrey R. Parsons Lecture Fund: This fund was created in honor of the retirement of Latin American Curator Jeffrey R. Parsons, to support the expenses related to the Museum of Anthropology's weekly lecture series, visiting speakers, symposia, student-sponsored lecturers, and co-sponsored lectures with other units.
