THE NEW GERMANY

From unconditional surrender to record unemployment, East Germany's birth to its demise: a timeline of German postwar history

1945

MAY 8 – UNCONDITIONAL SURRENDER
The war and Nazi tyranny are finally over. General Field Marshal Wilhelm Keitel, chief of the High Command of the Wehrmacht, capitulates in Berlin.

NOVEMBER 20 – START OF THE NUREMBERG TRIALS
Twenty-four leading Nazis and military aides are tried in Nuremberg. Almost a year later, the International Military Tribunal issues 12 death sentences.

1948

JUNE 20 – CURRENCY REFORM
Things begin to look up again: the deutschmark is now legal tender in the three western zones.

JUNE 24 – BERLIN BLOCKADE AND AILIFT
The Soviet army closes all road, rail and waterway links to Berlin. For more than a year, until September 30, 1949, the western powers supply Berlin by air. Every few minutes a cargo plane lands at one of West Berlin's three airports. The Germans affectionately label these aircraft “raisin bombers.”

1949

MAY 23 – BIRTH OF THE FEDERAL REPUBLIC OF GERMANY
On May 8, the Parliamentary Council in Bonn passes the Basic Law by a margin of 53 to 12 – the West German constitution is proclaimed on May 23. In September, Christian Democrat Konrad Adenauer is elected chancellor. He energetically embeds the Federal Republic into the Western Alliance, and shapes the course of West German politics until the early 1960s.

OCTOBER 7 – BIRTH OF THE GERMAN DEMOCRATIC REPUBLIC
The Provisional People's Chamber approves the constitution of the GDR. In July 1950, Walter Ulbricht becomes general secretary of the Socialist Unity Party. Ulbricht dominates political and cultural life in East Germany until the end of the 1960s.

1951

JANUARY 18 – NUDE SPARKS SCANDAL
The movie The Sinner creates a scandal in West Germany because actress Hildegard Knef is shown naked for three seconds.

1953

JUNE 17 – UPRISING IN EAST BERLIN
Construction workers protest against the increases in productivity demanded by the communist regime. The demonstrations escalate into a popular insurrection in the GDR. Hundreds of thousands take to the streets. With the approval of the East German leadership, Soviet tanks quash the rebellion.

1954

JULY 4 – THE “MIRACLE OF BERN”
Goal! Goal! Goal! In Bern, Switzerland, Helmut Rahn scores in the 84th minute against Hungary to win West Germany its first World Cup. Demoralized by the war and Nazi terror, the Germans wildly celebrate the victory.

1955

MAY 9 – NATO
West Germany joins the North Atlantic Treaty Organization, NATO.

MAY 14 – WARSAW PACT
The GDR joins the Warsaw Pact, the eastern-bloc equivalent of NATO.

1957

JANUARY 1 – RESTORATION OF THE SAAR REGION
Residents of the Saar region opt for German nationality. A referendum makes Saarland, until then occupied by France, West Germany's 11th federal state.

1958

OCTOBER 1 – THE “KING” ARRIVES
Elvis Presley is stationed in West Germany for 17 months. Rock 'n' roll infects young West Germans and divides the generations – an early hint of later youth protests.

1961

AUGUST 13 – BERLIN WALL
Workers begin building the Berlin Wall, which will divide East and West Berlin for nearly 30 years. Until now, hundreds of thousands of East Germans had escaped to the West via the city’s sector border. The GDR leadership installs a so-called death strip alongside the Wall, complete with barbed wire and mines. About 300 people die on the inner-German border in subsequent years. Thousands are caught trying to escape and end up in prison.

OCTOBER 21 — START OF THE SPD-FDP COALITION

With the support of the country’s liberals, Willy Brandt is elected chancellor in the first Social Democratic-led government in West Germany. With its so-called Ostpolitik, a policy of gradual bridgebuilding, the administration seeks to reduce tensions between East and West. The inner-German border becomes increasingly porous.

1971:

MAY 3 — ULRICHT IS TOPPLED

An era comes to an end in the GDR: Walter Ulbricht is forced to step down as first secretary of the Socialist Unity Party’s Central Committee. He is succeeded by Erich Honecker. Nothing changes for the East Germans: there is no liberalization at home, while foreign policy remains keyed to the Soviet Union.

1972:

SEPTEMBER 5/6 — TERROR AT THE OLYMPICS

The “happy games” turn into bloody disaster. Arab terrorists attack the Israeli quarters at the Olympic village in Munich. Eleven Israeli athletes, five terrorists and one police officer die.

1973:

NOVEMBER 25 — FIRST BAN ON SUNDAY DRIVING

German autobahns remain empty. The Arab states’ oil boycott forces the industrialized countries to impose drastic saving measures. West Germany prohibits driving on four Sundays during the year.

1974:

APRIL 25 — ESPIONAGE IN THE CHANCELLERY

A personal assistant of Chancellor Willy Brandt, Guenter Guillaume, is arrested and exposed as a top East German spy. As a result, Brandt tenders his resignation on May 6.

1977:

SEPTEMBER 5 — UNMITIGATED TERROR

Members of the Red Army Faction kidnap Hanns Martin Schleyer, the president of West Germany’s employers’ association. They want to extort the release of other members who are being held in Stammheim prison in Stuttgart. The same demands are made by Palestinian terrorists who hijack the Lufthansa aircraft “Landshut.” Chancellor Helmut Schmidt, a Social Democrat, toughs it out. On October 18, West Germany’s GSG 9 special forces storm the airliner at Mogadishu airport in Somalia, freeing all the hostages. Three of the imprisoned Red Army Faction members subsequently commit suicide. The following day, Hanns Martin Schleyer is found dead. In April and May, the faction’s members murder Siegfried Buback, Germany’s Chief Federal Prosecutor, and Juergen Ponto, head of Dresdner Bank.

AUGUST 26 – OFF INTO SPACE
GDR officer Sigmund Jaehn joins Russian cosmonauts to become the first German in space. Five years later, on November 28, 1983, the West German Ulf Merbold goes into orbit with the U.S. space shuttle.

JANUARY 22 – AUSCHWITZ AS A TV DRAMA
The four-part TV series Holocaust breaks all known records. Twenty million Germans sit glued to their screens, horrified by Germany’s past and the crimes committed against Jews. The Hollywood production achieves what countless books, plays, documentaries and films had failed to do: it makes Auschwitz a national issue.

FEBRUARY 28 – “ATOMIC POWER – NO THANKS!”
Some 90,000 anti-nuclear campaigners clash with thousands of police officers at a demonstration against the Brokdorf nuclear power plant. From the Brokdorf power plant through the confrontations at the western runway at Frankfurt Airport to occupied buildings in Hamburg, Frankfurt and West Berlin, West German political protests increasingly degenerate into civil disorder.

1982

OCTOBER 1 – UPEHAVAL IN BONN
After 13 years of coalition with the Social Democrats, West Germany’s Free Democratic Party (FDP) quits the government and joins forces with the Christian Democratic Union (CDU). Following a vote of no confidence against chancellor Helmut Schmidt, CDU leader Helmut Kohl becomes chancellor.

OCTOBER 22 – “PEACE WITHOUT ARMS”
The high point of the peace movement’s activities: hundreds of thousands of people demonstrate in Bonn against NATO’s rearmament resolution, which calls for the deployment of new U.S. nuclear weapons to counter Moscow’s SS-20 missiles. In parts of West Germany, peace supporters form kilometer-long “peace chains” and block missile bases. The rearmament goes ahead anyway.

1985

JULY 7 – “BOOM-BOOM BORIS!”
The 17-year-old Boris Becker from Leimen is the first German, and youngest player of all time, to win Wimbledon – the world’s top tennis tournament. Germany finds itself in the grip of a collective tennis craze.

OCTOBER 11 – DEATH IN THE BATHTUB
A former premier of Schleswig-Holstein, the Christian Democrat Uwe Barschel, is found dead in his bathtub in a Geneva hotel. At the beginning of September, SPIEGEL revealed that Barschel had planned to discredit Social Democrat Bjoern Engholm, his opponent in the upcoming state election, with allegations about his private life. Barschel, whose party lost the election following the publication of the revelations, denied the plans and urged members of his staff to give false testimony. His death in Geneva becomes a source of intense speculation for several years.

1989

SEPTEMBER 11 – FIRST HOLES IN THE IRON CURTAIN
Hungary opens its border to Austria for GDR refugees. Hundreds of East Germans had previously sought refuge in the West German embassies in East Berlin, Budapest and Prague.

SEPTEMBER 25 – “MONDAY DEMONSTRATIONS”
During a protest rally in Leipzig following the weekly Monday peace prayer at the Church of St. Nicholas – hence the name “Monday demonstrations” – some 6,000 people demand freedom of speech, movement and assembly in East Germany.

OCTOBER 9 – “WE ARE THE PEOPLE”
Seventy thousand gather on Leipzig’s streets for the city’s first large-scale demonstration. Their rallying call: “We are the people.” The event prompts mass protests around the GDR during the following weeks. In East Berlin alone, more than 500,000 residents demonstrate for democratic reforms on November 4.

NOVEMBER 9 – FALL OF THE WALL
In the evening, Politbüro member Günter Schabowski announces that all East Germans are free to travel. There is no more holding them back. That same night, the Wall is opened and thousands of East Berliners pour into the West.

NOVEMBER 22 – CALL FOR REUNIFICATION
At the Monday demonstration in Leipzig, the demand for the two German states to be reunified is voiced for the first time: “We are one people.”
1990

MARCH 18 – FREE ELECTIONS IN THE GDR
The Christian Democratic Union wins the first free elections to the People's Chamber in East Germany. The Christian Democrat Lothar de Maizière becomes the prime minister of a multi-party government and immediately starts negotiating reunification with Bonn.

OCTOBER 3 – REUNIFICATION
At midnight, the black, red and gold German flag is hoisted outside the Reichstag in Berlin. Fireworks light up the historic scene at Brandenburg Gate as people celebrate. Germany has been reunified.

1992

AUGUST 22 – HOSTILITY TOWARD FOREIGNERS
Pogrom-like riots are organized by young right-wing extremists against a hostel in Rostock where immigrants are staying. The rioters are applauded by curious onlookers as they set fire to the building. Violence against foreigners spreads. Three Turkish women die in an arson attack in Moelin. Hundreds of thousands of citizens protest against the xenophobia and form long human chains.

1993

APRIL 2 – FIRST POSTWAR MISSION
For the first time since the end of World War II, German troops are deployed. In a joint peacekeeping mission with other nations' forces, they help maintain the no-fly zone over Bosnia-Herzegovina.

1995

JUNE 24 – THE REICHSTAG AS A WORK OF ART
The artists Christo and Jeanne-Claude drape the Reichstag building with silvery, elegantly gathered plastic covers for two weeks. Millions head for Berlin to witness the spectacle.

JULY 17 – THE FLOOD ARRIVES
The territories alongside the Oder River in eastern Germany are hit by the worst flood of the century. Forty-five thousand helpers, including 30,000 Bundeswehr troops, spend several weeks working around the clock.

SEPTEMBER 27 – HELMUT KOHLE DEPARTS
The coalition of Christian Democrats and Free Democrats led by Helmut Kohl suffers a conclusive defeat in the general elections. The chancellor of reunification steps off the political stage, to be succeeded by the Social Democrat Gerhard Schröder.

2000

JUNE 1 – WORLD'S FAIR
German President Johannes Rau opens "Expo 2000" in Hanover. The first World's Fair in Germany proves a success, despite numerous organizational hitches in the run-up to the exhibition.

2001

JUNE 10 – GAY GOVERNOR IN BERLIN
At the convention of Berlin's Social Democrats, Klaus Wowereit, his party's leading candidate for the office of governing mayor, says he is a homosexual. His statement -- "I am gay, and that's a good thing" -- becomes a popular expression. Berliners have no problems with his sexual orientation and elect him to office.

2002

JANUARY 1 – BYE-BYE DEUTSCHMARK
The first euro notes and coins are issued. The deutschmark disappears. People adjust surprisingly quickly to the new legal tender.

2003

APRIL 26 – SCHOOL MASSACRE IN ERFURT
A 19-year-old former student from Gutenberg High School in Erfurt shoots dead 14 teachers and two students. He then turns his weapon on himself.

SEPTEMBER 22 – SCHRODER IS REELECTED
The Social Democratic Party remains the strongest party in the German general elections. The voters reward Schröder's opposition to the Iraq war. The coalition of Social Democrats and Greens retains its parliamentary majority. Gerhard Schröder is reelected chancellor.

2005

MARCH 1 – RECORD UNEMPLOYMENT
The Federal Labor Office reports that 5,216,000 people in Germany are out of a job -- a postwar record.
