STUDENT SUPPORT HANDBOOK

DEPARTMENT OF ANTHROPOLOGY

(REVISED 09/24/15)
Disclaimer

Please note that this document is a work in progress. The descriptions, addresses, websites, and deadlines were the most current listings available at the time this handbook was printed. Many of the fellowships have old deadlines listed because the deadlines for next season were not available at the time of print. Although we have tried very hard to make sure all the information in this handbook is relevant and current, some of the fellowships listed in this book may no longer be offered. There may also be some fellowships available that are not listed here. Please double-check these fellowship listings with your own research. This is by no means a complete guide to fellowship finding.

STUDENT SUPPORT HANDBOOK
University of Michigan
Department of Anthropology

Introduction
The Student Support Handbook is intended to provide students and faculty with a comprehensive compilation of information concerning financial aid for graduate students in anthropology: sources and types of support, how to apply, deadlines, eligibility, etc. The Handbook is issued by the Fellowships Committee and it is updated on an annual basis to reflect changes in deadlines, award conditions, new sources of support, and so on. While we hope that this Handbook will make life a little easier for all concerned, it must be stressed that IT CANNOT SUBSTITUTE FOR ATTENTION TO ANNOUNCEMENTS MADE BY DEPARTMENTAL FACULTY, STAFF, AND NEWSLETTERS. The student is ultimately responsible.

General Principles and Rules
The Department of Anthropology at the University of Michigan strives to support all the students admitted to the graduate program for a significant portion of their residence, although, current resources are inadequate to provide financial assistance for all students for the full duration of their studies. In this dilemma, the Department has been using specific priorities in allocating awards that are under the control of the Fellowships Committee. ALL STUDENTS ARE URGED TO VIGOROUSLY PURSUE ALTERNATE OPPORTUNITIES FOR SUPPORT offered either through other University channels or through non-University sources. Such individual initiative will benefit not only the student, but will maximize support available to the community as a whole.

A number of applicants to the Department are offered fellowship support at the time when they are admitted in recognition of unusual and/or exceptional past performance. However, as a rule the main source of departmental support, Graduate Student Instructorships (GSI), is reserved for students in their second and subsequent years. It is necessary to evaluate teaching potential before someone can be designated for such a position and to be sure the student has the academic background provided in the core courses. The College imposes a limit of 10 terms for holding GSI and Research Assistantships (GSRA) funded by the "general fund" (only applicable to GSIs and RAs other than those funded through external research grants, private contracts, etc.). In order to achieve a more equitable distribution of available support, the Department gives priority allocation of GSI positions to students who have accumulated less than eight terms. As will be explained in more detail in the following sections, selection of GSIs are made on the basis of GPA, a person's skills and educational background, and the specific requirements of course to be taught.

By and large, students have to secure their own funds for dissertation field research; this Handbook contains information about most of the more common sources of support. Again, additional assistance is available from various sources that can only be tapped through personal initiative.

As will be evident in the following sections, there are many different forms of potential assistance. These funds are from a myriad of sources including: the Federal Government, private foundations, and other University of Michigan programs and endowments. As a consequence, awards vary enormously in terms of eligibility, application requirements, levels of financial compensation, and work required as a condition of the award.

Some fellowships and awards depend on a student's application to the Department, other University programs, foundations, etc. Experience has shown that, even with the best of efforts, announcements of upcoming opportunities and deadlines sometimes miss potential applicants, are not read, are mislaid, or otherwise fail to register. The departmental staff and the Fellowships Committee will make every effort to disperse relevant information in a timely and effective manner, but it can not be stressed strongly enough THAT THE FINAL RESPONSIBILITY FOR MEETING DEADLINES AND CONDITIONS LIES IN THE HAND OF THE STUDENT.

Other forms of support depend on nomination by faculty members. The department staff and the Fellowships Committee will, again, attempt to keep faculty members informed and solicit nominations from them. Still it would be wise for students to keep in close touch with their faculty advisors/recommenders and remind them of approaching deadlines.

Additional Sources of Information
Additional fellowship information is available at the Titiev Library. Among the materials is a copy of Funding for Anthropological Research and it is hoped that you will put it to good use. Also a small book from The Smithsonian Institution lists fellowships available there.

The Rackham website also maintains information about fellowship opportunities and other available funding for prospective and current graduate students and programs at http://www.rackham.umich.edu/funding/.

The International Institute has a list of funding opportunities at http://www.ii.umich.edu/.

Also, there are many other sources of information on financial assistance available to University of Michigan students. Contact foundations, religious organizations, fraternities or sororities, and town or city clubs. Include community organizations and civic groups such as YMCA, 4-H Club, Kiwanis, Jaycees, American Legion, and the Scouts. Don't overlook any organization connected with your field of interest. Listed below are some of the places students should look for aid on campus.

* = Deadline for last year. Check website or contact for current deadlines.
OFFICE OF FINANCIAL AID: All graduate students, with the exception of those in Law and Medical School, may apply for loan and employment assistance through the Office of Financial Aid. They have several grant and loan opportunities available on a demonstrated need. Entering students should apply as soon as possible. Contact the office for all deadlines: 2500 Student Activities Building, 515 E. Jefferson St., (734) 763-6600, or www.finaid.umich.edu/types_of_financial_aid/studentwork.k.asp

The federal government funds the COLLEGE WORK-STUDY PROGRAM to provide part-time jobs for needy students. To qualify, students must be U.S. citizens or permanent residents, enrolled full-time and able to demonstrate financial need. This Department uses work study students in the Tittie Library. Apply at 2500 Student Activities Building, 515 E. Jefferson St., (734) 763-6600, or www.finaid.umich.edu/types_of_financial_aid/studentwork.k.asp

LIBRARY: The Harlan Hatcher Graduate Library has a wide selection of books located in the Reference Room on the 2nd floor pertaining to fellowships, scholarships and grants. These books are helpful in locating funds from outside the University. Staff at the Information Reference Center Desk can assist you. Also check the subject catalog. Local public libraries usually have information as well.

INTERNATIONAL INSTITUTE: Funding opportunities include graduate fellowships, funds for development of conferences and workshops, study abroad programs, and many other programs. To be eligible, students must be registered with the Institute, and registered for the term for which they request support. The International Institute office is located at 2660 School of Social Work Building, 1080 S. University Ave., (734) 763-9200, or visit the website www.ii.umich.edu/

INTERNATIONAL CENTER: The Center provides information on study abroad programs, employment abroad, the Peace Corps volunteer program, and other overseas volunteer opportunities. The International Center has information on fellowship and scholarship opportunities for foreign graduate and undergraduate students. The Center is located at 603 E. Madison St. For more information call (734) 764-9310, or visit the website www.internationalcenter.umich.edu

CENTER FOR THE CONTINUING EDUCATION OF WOMEN (CEW): The CEW provides counseling for individuals or groups. They have information on academic programs, childcare, UoM flexibilities, financial aid, community resources and job search. Small emergency grants are available along with their annual CEW scholarships. You will also find loan and reference books available. Located at 330 E. Liberty St., (734) 764-6005 http://www.umich.edu/~cew/

EMPLOYMENT: Sources of funds for jobs are the Federal Government, the University of Michigan, and public and private employers on and off campus. Many jobs, in addition to work-study employment, are available and financial aid is generally not a factor in selection. Information may be obtained at the Permanent Part-time Employment Service, Hospital Employment, Temporary Employment Office and the local newspapers. Contact Student Employment 2500 Student Activities Building, 515 E. Jefferson St., (734) 763-4128, www.studentemployment.umich.edu/ or see Jobs at the University of Michigan at www.umich.edu/~jobs/

STUDENT VETERANS ASSISTANCE PROGRAM (SVAP): If you are eligible to receive veteran benefits, contact the SVAP located within the Office of New Student Programs 1100 LSA Building, 500 South State St. (734) 764-6413 for assistance in processing the necessary certification paperwork in order to receive benefits.

ALUMNI ASSOCIATION: The Alumni Association has small emergency grants for unanticipated emergencies as well as their scholarship program for women. This office is located in the Alumni Center, 200 Fletcher St. or www.alumni.umich.edu

OFFICE OF THE VICE PRESIDENT FOR RESEARCH has information on many post-doctoral fellowships. 4080 Fleming, 503 Thompson, (734) 764-1185. www.research.umich.edu

OFFICE OF SERVICES FOR STUDENTS WITH DISABILITIES has a limited number of small emergency grants for students with disabilities. The staff is available to answer questions and give referrals concerning admission, registration, services available, financial aid, etc. In addition, they can help with assessing student need in such areas as modified housing, attendants, interpreters, readers, transportation, classroom and course accommodations, tutors, note takers, and adaptive equipment. SSD can also serve as liaison with the university and external agencies for students with disabilities. G625 Haven Hall, 504 South State St. (734) 763-3000. www.umich.edu/~sswd/ssdoffice@umich.edu

SOURCES OF SUPPORT

GENERAL – NO RESTRICTIONS SPECIFIED

Graduate Student Instructor (GSI) -- Teaching

An average of 15-20 Graduate Student Instructor positions are available per term depending on which courses are offered and enrollment rates. Most GSI-ships carry fractional appointments of .30 or .50 FTE (full-time equivalent), with the range extending from .25 to .60. Compensation includes a stipend and a tuition waiver for appointments at .25 and higher. Typically, a GSI will teach two to four sections and work between 10 and 20 hours per week. Levels of compensation are set through collective bargaining between the Graduate Employee Organization (GEO) and the University administration.

The Fellowships Committee typically makes assignment of GSI positions in October and February for the following term. Students who are required to teach as part of a fellowship are also required to submit an application. Instructors may indicate to the Fellowships Committee specific requirements in terms of skills and educational background for teaching assistants in their courses and have an opportunity to recommend specific students. However, the Fellowships Committee, according to a series of explicit criteria, makes appointments. These criteria include: good academic standing; normally a GPA of 7.0 or better; accumulated work experience or prior GSI support (students having accumulated eight terms of GSI support are placed on a "reserve list"); completion of academic assignments (no more than one pending incomplete grade); the skills of the applicants; evaluations of previous teaching experiences; as well as requirements of courses to be taught.

Eligibility: Normally a student must have completed one year of graduate training, must be enrolled, and have no more than one pending incomplete.

International students must complete the IGSI training and pass an English language test, which evaluates proficiency, pronunciation, clarity, and interpersonal skills. The English Language Institute administers the test. IGSI training is offered annually in May and at the end of August. International students are encouraged to take this training as early in their graduate career as their English preparation will allow. International students from English-speaking countries are not exempt from the IGSI training requirement. Please see the Graduate Program Manager for details.

Graduate Student Research Assistantships (GSRA) -- Research

The Museum of Anthropology has Research Assistantships available for assistance to curators in the curation and research of collections. These assignments are currently at a .50 fraction of FTE and require 20 hours of work per week. Similar to GSI-ships, compensation includes a tuition waiver and a stipend.

The Director of the Museum makes assignment of RA positions with the advice of the curators. Similar criteria are used as for the appointment of Graduate Student Instructor.

Eligibility: Student must be enrolled during period of appointment and possess skills required for curation and research on specific collections.

Jean Monnet Graduate Fellowship on Issues of European Integration

With a grant from the European Commission, the European Union Center and the Horace H. Rackham School of Graduate Studies are offering student summer grants of $5,000 to work on issues of European integration. Student grantees will conduct research and write a paper resulting from this research on a relevant topic of their choosing.

It is expected that during spring and/or summer of 2012 the grantees, in consultation with faculty advisors of their choosing, will devote twelve weeks of full time work on their project. This is not a travel grant.

Eligibility: UM students in professional schools and graduate programs are eligible to apply. The fellowship is limited to returning students. Students in the last year of terminal degree programs are not eligible.

LSA Regents' Fellowships

The College allocates the LSA Regents’ Fellowships to the Department of Anthropology. These fellowships provide two terms of support for your first year with four terms as a GSI for years two and three. They are awarded to particularly outstanding candidates applying for admission to the graduate program. The fellowship provides full tuition, healthcare, plus a stipend. Selection is made jointly by the Admissions Committee.

By nomination only when admitted.

University Employment Opportunities

There is a wide range of employment opportunities around the University, including hourly employment as well as regular full-time and part-time jobs. RA and GSI positions are often available in other departments and units, particularly research centers, museums, and other specialized University units. Such positions are also available at the Pilot Program, in Residence Halls, and in the Exhibit Museum. The Library often employs students with special non-Western language skills. There are also a variety of clerical, secretarial, and professional positions that may be appropriate for short-term or long-term support.

It should be noted that University jobs are often accessible to foreign students, even if the conditions of their visa stipulate that they may not take employment, since on-campus work can often be argued to constitute an aspect of their education.

Rackham Conference Travel Grant

The Rackham Conference Travel Grant is intended to provide opportunities for Rackham graduate students to become familiar with, and participate in the life of their academic professions. You must submit your applications before the first day of the conference for travel through the end of the final term of registration. The conference may occur anytime up through your final semester of registration. Applications will not be considered for retroactive funding. A student is eligible to receive one travel grant award (either domestic or international, but not both) during a fiscal year which runs from July 1 - June 30, based on the date the conference is attended. For travel on or after July 1, 2012 through June 30, 2013, award amounts are as follows: up to $700 for the continental US; up to $950 for Alaska, Hawaii, Puerto Rico, Canada, Mexico, the Caribbean, and Europe; up to $1,200 for Africa, Asia, South America, and Australia.

The Department does not have student travel funds. Rackham funding is limited and may expire without notice.

Jack Kent Cooke Foundation Graduate Scholarship Program

The Foundation, like other endowed institutions, experienced significant financial losses in 2008 and early 2009, and as a result, faced difficult choices regarding the future of some of its programs.

Eligibility:
In August 2009, they announced that, going forward, they will award new graduate scholarships only to students who have received an undergraduate scholarship from the Foundation. All undergraduate scholarship recipients are, therefore, eligible to apply for a one-time award of up to $50,000 to support their graduate or professional studies.

The Jack Kent Cooke Foundation does not discriminate on the basis of race, religion, creed, color, sex, age, physical or mental disabilities, sexual orientation, or national origin.

Archaeological Institute of America Publication Preparation Grant

The Publication Preparation Grant offers a stipend of $5,000 (paid in two yearly installments) to assist scholars in preparing, completing, and publishing results of their research. This grant supports the scholarly publication of already excavated archaeological material in a peer-reviewed outlet. It is intended to assist in the final analysis, writing, and preparation for publication of the results of research so that, by the end of the second year under the grant, a completed manuscript will be submitted for publication. Applicants may request funds to work on archaeological material of any period from anywhere in the world. Material may already reside in international or North American museums or institutions, or still remain in storerooms on site.

Eligibility:
Applications are open to graduate students and postdoctoral professionals. Scholars must be members of the AIA at the time of application and until the end of the grant term.

The School of American Research (SAR) Resident Scholar Fellowships

The School of American Research (SAR) awards approximately six Resident Scholar Fellowships each year to scholars who have completed their research and analysis and who need time to think and write about topics important to the understanding of humankind. Resident scholars may approach their research from the perspective of anthropology or from anthropologically informed perspectives in such fields as history, sociology, art, law, and philosophy.

SAR provides Residents Scholars with low cost housing and an on campus office, a stipend up to $40,000, library assistance, and other benefits during nine-month tenure, from September 1 through May 31.

There are 6 total types of fellowships available:

Henry Luce Fellowship: One nine-month fellowship is available for a postdoctoral Asian or U.S. scholar whose research focuses on East Asia or Southeast Asia. Fellows receive a $40,000 stipend and housing and office space on the SAR campus.

National Endowment for the Humanities Fellowship: One nine-month fellowship is available for a postdoctoral scholar whose project relates to the humanities. Fellows receive a $40,000 stipend and housing and office space on the SAR campus. Applicants must be U.S. citizens or have resided in the U.S. for three years.

Anne Ray Fellowship: One nine-month fellowship is available for an established Native American scholar, working in the humanities, arts, or social sciences, who has a commitment to providing mentorship to recent graduates or graduate students. In addition to working on their own research, the scholar serves as a mentor to two interns working at the Indian Arts Research Center. Fellows receive a $40,000 stipend and housing and office space on the SAR campus.

Weatherhead Fellowships: Two fellowships are available for either Ph.D. candidates or scholars with doctorates whose work is either humanistic or social scientific in nature. Fellows receive a $40,000 stipend ($30,000 for Ph.D. candidates) and housing and office space on the SAR campus.

Katrin H. Lamon Fellowship: One fellowship is available for a Native American scholar, either pre- or post-doctoral, working in either the humanities or the social sciences. Fellows receive a $40,000 stipend ($30,000 for...
Ph.D. candidates) and housing and office space on the SAR campus.

Campbell Fellowship for Women Scholar-Practitioners from Developing Nations: One six-month fellowship is available for a female social scientist from a developing nation, either a Ph.D. candidate or post-doctoral scholar, whose work addresses women’s economic and social empowerment in that nation. In addition to a $4,500/month stipend and housing and office space on the SAR campus, the Campbell Fellow receives travel, shipping, and library resource funds; health insurance; and the support of a mentoring committee of established scholar-practitioners. Applicants must be nationals of developing countries that are currently eligible to borrow from the World Bank, and should be pursuing research in one of the social sciences: anthropology, economics, education, geography, history, law, linguistics, political science, psychology, social work, or sociology, or in an interdisciplinary field that incorporates two or more of these discipline with research projects that identify causes of and/or solutions to gender inequity in the developing world, and thus contribute to women’s social and economic empowerment, will be favored.

In addition, SAR is interested in hosting exceptional scholars who have received funding through the following programs: Ford Foundation Diversity Fellowships, Mellon/ACLS Recent Doctoral Recipients Fellowships, and Visiting Fulbright Scholar fellowships. Applicants to these non-SAR fellowship programs whose research is consistent with SAR’s mission may be able to join the School’s dynamic intellectual community for the duration of their fellowship. Interested scholars can contact SAR’s Resident Scholar Program for more information.

Rackham Humanities Research Fellowship

These fellowships have been established to increase the proportion of doctoral students in the humanities and humanities-related social sciences who complete the Ph.D. and decrease the time it takes to complete the degree.

Candidacy awards consist of a monthly stipend of $2,150 (currently) during the tenure, candidacy tuition and all fees for either the fall or winter term, GradCare health and dental insurance coverage during tenure. Tenure for candidacy awards will be for either the Spring/Summer and Fall term or Winter and Spring/Summer term. Dissertation awards consist of a monthly stipend of $2,150 (currently) during the tenure, candidacy tuition and all fees for two terms (usually fall and winter), GradCare health and dental health insurance coverage during the tenure. Tenure for the dissertation awards is for three consecutive terms (twelve months). Students must be registered full-time during the fall or winter semesters. An award may not be divided among two or more students.

Eligibility:
To receive funding under this program, students must achieve candidacy within three years (of their first fall or winter term enrollment as a master's student or as a pre-candidate). Students are expected to complete their doctoral degree by the end of their sixth year. Those who are past their sixth year in a doctoral program are not eligible. Extensions for parental accommodation will be granted on notification to the Fellowships Office; requests for extensions for medical conditions, dependent care, etc. should be submitted to that office in writing.

ISR Innovation in Social Research Fellowships

(Candidates Only)

The Innovation in Social Research Fellowship is designed to support a candidate to complete dissertation research and writing. 2012 will be the last year ISR will offer the fellowship.

The purpose of this fellowship is to promote innovative empirically grounded, social scientific analysis of important intellectual or practical issues pertaining to human behavior or social life. The proposed research should challenge conventional wisdom, use innovative/novel techniques and/or cross-disciplinary boundaries in new and unusual ways. In addition, the award should facilitate such analysis in active association with an ISR research project or program area. The award will cover tuition and Grad Care and will include a stipend of $20,000. In most instances the term of the award will be limited to twelve months. If departmental, collegiate or extramural monies complement the ISR award, the term may be extended up to a total of 24 months, but this is discouraged.

Application:
By Department nomination.

Weiser Emerging Democracy Fellowships for Incoming Graduate Students

The Weiser Center for Emerging Democracies at the University of Michigan (WCED) offers Weiser Emerging Democracy Fellowships for Incoming Graduate Students. These fellowships will be awarded to incoming graduate students at the University of Michigan who expect to focus their graduate work around the theme of "emerging democracy past or present" in Europe or Eurasia.

This focus on emerging democracy is understood broadly. While focus on post-communist Europe and Eurasia is preferred, we also welcome comparative and historical studies of the emergence of democracy from dictatorial, authoritarian, or imperial rule.

Fellowship awards up to $12,000 will be given; the number of fellowships awarded is contingent on the availability of funds. We expect Weiser Emerging Democracy Fellows to participate in the various lectures and conferences of the Center, so long as there is no conflict in their schedules. We also encourage fellows to join the emerging democracy graduate seminar or workshop, taking it either for credit or not for credit in one of the first two years of their residence at Michigan. Upon successful completion of this seminar or workshop, up to an additional $3,000 will be added to awardees’ accounts to support their research on emerging democracy.

The Smithsonian’s Fellowship in Museum Practice (FMP)

The Smithsonian’s Fellowships in Museum Practice (FMP) program is a professional development opportunity for experienced museum practitioners, academics, and training providers. The program supports research about issues of theory and practice in education, curation, exhibition, administration and other museum functions and disciplines. It offers competitively selected individuals an opportunity to study a museological topic of their choice for up to six months in residence at the Smithsonian.

Residency arrangements are flexible. Individual schedules are structured to meet a fellow’s employment situation and research objectives. One or more fellowships are awarded annually for a period of up to six months. An award consists of a stipend of $3,500 per month plus round-trip travel expenses between the recipient’s home and Washington, D.C. Funds to support participation in a relevant conference or seminar will be considered on a case-by-case basis. A fellow must be in residence at the Smithsonian Center for Education and Museum Studies (SCEMS) office for the majority of the fellowship period. SCEMS reserves the right to not award a fellowship in a year if the reviewers decide that none of the applications is suitable.

The Smithsonian Center for Education and Museum Studies (SCEMS) provides office space, advisory services and access to Smithsonian facilities, resources, staff and reference collections as well as informal forums in which to present work-in-progress.

Eligibility:
The program is open to mid- and senior-level museum personnel, researchers and training providers. All disciplines and functional areas of work in museums and allied cultural and educational organizations are eligible to apply. However, priority is given to those fields which reflect the ongoing research of the Smithsonian Institution, and its strategic plan. To be considered for funding, applicants must be employed by a not-for-profit (501-C-3) cultural or educational institution that deals directly with the public or be an independent scholar. People who work in libraries and schools as well as museums and cultural centers have received fellowships. International participation is welcome. Participants must be fluent in spoken and written English.

Andrew W. Mellow Fellowships - National Museum of the American Indian (NMAI) Conservation Office

Designed for recent graduates of recognized conservation training programs. Andrew W. Mellon fellowships are intended to cultivate practical skills as well as foster a solid understanding of the contexts of material culture, the philosophies of conservation at NMAI, and the ethics of the conservation profession. Andrew W. Mellon fellowships involve work on the Conservation Office’s major projects and research related to projects and collections.

The Conservation Laboratory at NMAI’s Cultural Resource Center in Suitland, Maryland (metro D.C. area) is the work site. Fellowships are for one year with a possible renewal of a second year. Fellowships commence in the fall (September or October) and include a stipend and funds for travel and research, plus health insurance. Candidates with the best qualifications will be those who are pursuing a career in the conservation of material culture of the indigenous peoples of North, Central and South America. Applicants should have a proven record of research, writing ability, and proficient English language skills (written and spoken). Fellowships are awarded without regard to age, sex, race, or nationality of the applicant.

The Leakey Foundation Research Grants

Research Grants are awarded twice annually and constitute the majority of the Foundation’s grant program. The Foundation exclusively funds research related specifically to human origins, including paleoanthropology, primate behavior, and studies of modern hunter-gatherer groups.

The majority of the Foundation’s Research Grants to doctoral student are in the $3,000-$13,500 range; however, larger grants, especially to senior scientists and post-doctoral students, may be funded up to $22,000. Priority of funding is commonly given to exploratory phases of promising new research projects that meet the stated purpose of the Foundation.

Eligibility:
Advanced doctoral students (advanced to candidacy) and established scientists are eligible for general research grants. There are no citizenship restrictions. However, all applications must be in English.

Asian Cultural Council Residency Program in Asia

The Asian Cultural Council’s Residency program in Asia assists individual American artists, scholars, and professionals undertaking research, teaching, and creative residencies at cultural and educational institutions in East and Southeast Asia. Projects supported in the ACC Residency Program demonstrate close collaboration in design and execution between the visiting American specialist and the host organization and produce tangible results such as publication, course development, or the creation of new artistic work. The program helps to foster the growth of Asian cultural studies in the U.S. and of American cultural studies in Asia, as well as to stimulate long-term relationships in the arts and humanities between American individuals and institutions and their colleagues in Asia.

Individuals and institutions wishing to inquire about the possibility of grant support should send a brief description of the activity for which assistance is being sought to the Council. If the proposed activity falls within the ACC’s guidelines, application materials requesting more detailed information will be provided by the ACC, and applicants will be informed as to when their proposals can be presented to the trustees of the Council for formal review.

Virginia Foundation for the Humanities Resident Fellows Program

The Virginia Foundation for the Humanities offers residential fellowships to scholars and writers in the humanities. We seek applications that are intellectually stimulating, imaginative, and accessible to the public. There are no restrictions on topic, and applications are invited from across the broad spectrum of the humanities.

The maximum fellowship stipend is $15,000 per semester. Fellowships are awarded for one semester or a full academic year.

Eligibility:
Fellowships are open to faculty members in the humanities, independent scholars, and others working on projects in the humanities. Applicants need not have advanced degrees, but the VFH generally does not support work toward a degree. Smithsonian Opportunities - Fellowships and Internship Program

Fellowships at the Smithsonian Institution provide students and scholars with opportunities to pursue independent research projects in association with members of the Smithsonian professional research staff. As part of its mandate for “the increase and diffusion of knowledge,” including the diverse ideas, skills, and cultures of our nation, the Smithsonian Institution pursues policies of equal opportunity and cultural diversity. Smithsonian fellowships and internships are awarded on the basis of these policies. Applicants are evaluated on their academic standing, scholarly qualifications, experiences, the quality of the research project or study proposed and its suitability to Smithsonian collections, facilities, and programs.

Scholars and students with outside sources of funding are also encouraged to utilize the Institution's resources and facilities. The Office of Fellowships can facilitate visiting appointments in such cases provided that the investigator obtains approval from the staff member with whom he/she would consult.

Smithsonian Institution Libraries (SIL) Resident Scholar Programs

The Smithsonian Institution Libraries (SIL)’s Dibner Library Resident Scholar Program and Baird Society Resident Scholar Program provide support for scholarly research in the Special Collections of the Smithsonian Libraries in Washington, DC and New York, NY, in an extensive range of subject areas. Each program awards stipends of $3,500 per month for up to six months. Historians, librarians, doctoral students, and post-doctoral scholars are welcome to apply. Scholars must be in residence at the Smithsonian during the award period.

The Dibner Library Resident Scholar Program supports research on topics relating to the history of science and technology collections in the Dibner Library. The Dibner Library has manuscripts and rare books dating primarily from the fifteenth to the nineteenth centuries. Collection strengths are in the fields of mathematics, astronomy, classical natural philosophy, theoretical physics (up to the early twentieth century), experimental physics (especially electricity and magnetism), engineering technology (from the Renaissance to the late nineteenth century), and scientific apparatus and instruments.

Baird Society Resident Scholars conduct research in SIL’s other Special Collections located in Washington, DC and New York City. These include printed materials on world’s fairs (19th and early 20th centuries); manufacturer's commercial trade catalogs in the National Museum of American History Library (285,000 pieces representing 30,000 companies dating from the 19th and 20th centuries); natural history rare books in the Cullman Library (pre-1840 works on topics such as botany, zoology, travel & exploration, museums & collecting, geology, and anthropology); air and space history in the National Air and Space Museum Library's Ramsey Room (ballooning, rocketry, and aviation, late 18th to early 20th centuries); James Smithson's library in the Cullman Library; European and American decorative arts, architecture, and design in the Cooper-Hewitt National Design Museum Library's Bradley Room (18th to 20th centuries); and history of art and artists (exhibition catalogs, catalogues raisonnés, serials, dissertations and artists' ephemera) at the American Art Museum/National Portrait Gallery Library. This award is supported by SIL’s Spencer Baird Society.

The Harvard Academy for International and Area Studies: Academy Scholars Program Pre-doctoral Fellowships

The Academy Scholars Program identifies and supports outstanding scholars at the start of their careers whose work combines disciplinary excellence in the social sciences (including history and law) with a command of the language, history, or culture of non-Western countries or regions.

Academy Scholars are appointed for 2 years by the Harvard Academy for International and Area Studies and are provided time, guidance, and access to Harvard University facilities. They receive substantial financial and research assistance to undertake sustained projects of research and/or acquire accessory training in their chosen fields and areas. The Senior Scholars, a distinguished group of senior Harvard University faculty members, act as mentors to the Academy Scholars to help them achieve their intellectual potential.

Each year four to five Academy Scholars are named for two-year appointments. Academy Scholars are expected to reside in the Cambridge/Boston area for the duration of their appointments unless traveling for pre-approved research purposes.

Eligibility: For Ph.D. candidates in who have completed all course work and general examinations by the application deadline as well as reached the final stages of the dissertation research and writing. Applications are welcome from any qualified person without regard to nationality, gender or race.

Rackham Humanities Research Fellowship

These fellowships have been established to increase the proportion of doctoral students in the humanities and humanities-related social sciences who complete the Ph.D. and decrease the time it takes to complete the degree.

Candidacy awards will consist of a monthly stipend of $2,150 (currently) during the tenure, candidacy tuition, all fees for either the fall or winter term, and GradCare health and dental insurance coverage during tenure. Tenure for candidacy awards will be for either the Spring/Summer and Fall term or Winter and Spring/Summer term. Dissertation awards will consist of a monthly stipend of $2,150 (currently) during the tenure, candidacy tuition, all fees for two terms (usually fall and winter), and GradCare health and dental health insurance coverage during the tenure. Tenure for the dissertation awards is for three consecutive terms (twelve months).

Eligibility:
To receive funding under this program, students must achieve candidacy within three years (of their first fall or winter term enrollment as a master's student or as a precandidate). Students are expected to complete their doctoral degree by the end of their sixth year. Those who are past their sixth year in a doctoral program are not eligible.

GENERAL DISSERTATION

Andrew W. Mellon Foundation/ACLS Dissertation Completion Fellowships

The Mellon/ACLS Dissertation Completion Fellowships are to assist graduate students in the humanities and related social sciences in the last year of Ph.D. dissertation writing. Ph.D. Applicants must be prepared to complete their dissertations within the period of their fellowship tenure, which is for one year beginning in the summer, and no later than August 31st.

The Fellowship tenure may be carried out in residence at the Fellow's home institution, abroad, or at another appropriate site for the research. The $25,000 stipend, plus funds for research costs of up to $3,000 and for university fees of up to $5,000 makes for a total award of up to $33,000. These Fellowships may not be held concurrently with any other fellowship or grant.

Eligibility:
Applicants must be Ph.D. candidates in a humanities or social science department in the United States, and have all requirements for the Ph.D. except the dissertation completed before beginning fellowship tenure. Also, applicants must be no more than six years in the degree program; awardees can hold this Fellowship no later than their seventh year.

Mesopotamian Fellowship

The Mesopotamian Fellowship provides support in the amount of $9,000 for a period of research lasting three months to a year. $1,000 of this Fellowship amount will be allocated for registration and travel support to the ASOR Annual Meeting where the successful applicant will be expected to present a paper on his or her research.

This Fellowship is primarily intended to support field/research on ancient Mesopotamian civilization carried out in the Middle East, but other projects such as travel to work on museum collections or archives related to ancient Mesopotamia will also be considered. The Mesopotamian Fellowship is based on a July 1st to June 30th fiscal year. Fellowship time should be continuous, without frequent trips outside the Middle East.

Pre-doctoral students and post-doctoral scholars from any country are invited to apply. Each recipient must submit a written report within two months of the conclusion of the award period, according to ASOR guidelines. A portion of the stipend will be withheld until the report is received.

The Harry Frank Guggenheim Foundation Dissertation Fellowships

The Harry Frank Guggenheim Foundation awards ten or more dissertation fellowships each year to graduate students who would complete the writing of a dissertation within the award year. These fellowships of $20,000 each are designed to contribute to the support of the doctoral candidate to enable him or her to complete the thesis in a timely manner and are only appropriate for students approaching the final year of their Ph.D. work. This fellowship is not for support of doctoral research. Applications are evaluated in comparison with each other and not in competition with the postdoctoral research grant proposals. Applicants may be citizens of any country and studying at colleges or universities in any country.

Questions that interest the foundation concern violence and aggression in relation to social change, intergroup conflict, war, terrorism, crime, and family relationships, among other subjects. Dissertations with no relevance to understanding human violence and aggression will not be supported. Priority will also be given to areas and methodologies not receiving adequate attention and support from other funding sources.

Eligibility:
These grants are made to Ph.D. candidates who are entering the dissertation stage of graduate school. Usually, this means that fieldwork or other research is complete and writing has begun. If analysis and writing are not far enough along for an applicant to be confident that s/he will complete the dissertation within the year, s/he should not apply, as the application will not be competitive with those that comply with this timetable. In some disciplines, particularly experimental fields, research and writing can reasonably be expected to be completed within the same year, and in those cases it is appropriate to apply.

The Spencer Foundation Dissertation Fellowship Program

The Dissertation Fellowship Program seeks to encourage a new generation of scholars from a wide range of disciplines and professional fields to undertake research relevant to the improvement of education. These fellowships support individuals whose dissertations show potential for bringing fresh and constructive perspectives to the history, theory, or practice of formal or informal education anywhere in the world.

Approximately 20 non-renewable Fellowships will be awarded. Recipients of the fellowships will receive $25,000 to support completion of the dissertation. This amount must be expended within a time limit of up to two years and in accordance with the work plan provided by the candidate in the application. It is expected that Fellows will not accept employment other than as described (if any) in the application nor will they accept other awards providing duplicate benefits without the written permission of the Spencer Foundation.

Eligibility:
Applicants must be candidates for the doctoral degree at a graduate school within the United States. All applicants must document that they will have completed all pre-dissertation requirements by June 1st and must provide a clear and specific plan for completing the dissertation within a one or two-year time frame.

Charlotte W. Newcombe Doctoral Dissertation Fellowships

The Charlotte W. Newcombe Doctoral Dissertation Fellowships are designed to encourage original and significant study of ethical or religious values in all fields of the humanities and social sciences, and particularly to help Ph.D. candidates in these fields complete their dissertation work in a timely manner.

Eligibility:
Applicants must be candidates for Ph.D. or Th.D. degrees in doctoral programs at graduate schools in the United States, and be able to fulfill all pre-dissertation requirements by the application deadline, including approval of the dissertation proposal, and expect to submit completed dissertations by summer 2013. Applicants must be in the writing stage of the dissertation, and have never held a similar national award for the final year of dissertation writing. Also, applicants must have never applied for this Fellowship before.

Wenner-Gren Foundation Dissertation Fieldwork Grants

Dissertation Fieldwork Grants are awarded to aid doctoral or thesis research. The program contributes to the Foundation's overall mission to support basic research in anthropology and to ensure that the discipline continues to be a source of vibrant and significant work that furthers our understanding of humanity's cultural and biological origins, development, and variation. The Foundation supports research that demonstrates a clear link to anthropological theory and debates, and promises to make a solid contribution to advancing these ideas.

Dissertation Fieldwork Grants provide a maximum of US $20,000 and the Osmundsen Initiative supplement provides up to an additional $5,000 for a maximum grant of US $25,000. Grants are non-renewable.

Eligibility:
Applicants must be currently enrolled for a doctoral degree. Application must be made jointly with a dissertation supervisor or other scholar who will undertake responsibility for supervising the project. Qualified doctoral students are eligible without regard to nationality or institutional or departmental affiliation. Grant funds cannot be released unless the applicant has successfully completed all requirements for the doctoral degree other than the dissertation/thesis.

Block Grants

Supported by funds allocated by the Rackham Graduate School. In the Department of Anthropology, this fund is used primarily to assist students with grants while writing the dissertation. The Fellowships Committee historically made an effort to provide every student in the dissertation writing stage with block grant support, but has also strictly limited such support to one semester. In some cases, support through the block grant is also available for other purposes. It should be stressed, however, that the size of the block grant allocation to the Department is variable and that past practice should therefore be considered only as an informal guide rather than a guarantee.

Eligibility:
All students in the graduate program are eligible upon completion of 2-3 chapters of their dissertation, with a letter of support from their dissertation chair.

Application:

Rackham One-term Dissertation Fellowship

Rackham One-Term Dissertation Fellowships are intended to speed the process of completing the dissertation. These awards consist of candidacy tuition and registration fee plus a stipend of $8,600 (currently) for one term. Recipients will be eligible for GradCare health and dental insurance coverage provided by the Graduate School during the term of their award. A student may receive only one Rackham One-Term Dissertation Fellowship.

Eligibility:
A student must have achieved candidacy prior to the beginning of the term in which he or she receives a Rackham One-Term Dissertation Fellowship. The student must have established a dissertation committee and submitted the Nomination of Dissertation Committee form to the Rackham Academic Records and Dissertation Office prior to the beginning of the term in which he or she receives this fellowship. Recipients of this award may not be employed more than ten hours a week during the tenure of the fellowship. Recipients may not hold this award in conjunction with another award.

James B. Griffin Awards

The Museum of Anthropology has a small endowment in the name of former Director J.B. Griffin through which small grants are made either in support of research initiating dissertation fieldwork in archaeology or to pay for specific expenses of the dissertation research itself. Awards range up to $2000. The Director in consultation with the Museum’s curators selects awardees.

Eligibility: Awardees must be PhD candidates and their research must be approved by a dissertation chair who is a curator with the Museum of Anthropology.

Application:
Available in the Museum of Anthropology office

Deadline: Open (One week prior to Museum of Anthropology EC meeting)

Dumbarton Oaks Junior Fellowships

Dumbarton Oaks offers residential fellowships in three areas of study: Byzantine Studies (including related aspects of late Roman, early Christian, Western medieval, Slavic, and Near Eastern studies), Pre-Columbian Studies (of Mexico, Central America, and Andean South America), and Garden and Landscape Studies.

Junior Fellowships are for degree candidates who at the time of application have fulfilled all preliminary requirements for a Ph.D. or appropriate final degree and will be working on a dissertation or final project at Dumbarton Oaks under the direction of a faculty member at their own university.

Junior Fellowships are normally awarded for the academic year (September - May). During this time, recipients are expected to be in residence at Dumbarton Oaks and to devote full time to their study projects without undertaking any other major activities. Awards may also be made for a single term.

Fellowship awards range from an equivalent of approximately $27,000 for an unmarried Junior Fellow and includes a stipend of $15,500 for the full academic year; housing (a housing allowance may be offered instead of housing if Dumbarton Oaks is unable to provide accommodations); $2,100 (if needed) to assist with the cost of bringing and maintaining dependents here; a research expense allowance of $1,000 for the year; lunch on weekdays; and the health insurance contribution from Dumbarton Oaks. Travel expense reimbursement for the lowest available airfare, up to a maximum of $1,300, may be provided for Junior Fellows if support cannot be obtained from other sources (such as a Fulbright travel grant). Fellows may hold other grants with the knowledge and permission of both the grantors and Dumbarton Oaks.

Michigan Society of Fellows Postdoctoral Fellowship

Each Fellow has a three-year appointment as Assistant Professor in an affiliated department of the University and a three-year appointment as a Postdoctoral Scholar in the Society of Fellows. This appointment is not tenure-track. The current annual stipend is $52,000. Fellows are eligible for participation in the University health, dental, and life insurance programs. Each fellow is expected to teach the equivalent of one academic year, i.e., a total of two terms during the period of the fellowship. Any subsequent appointment of a Fellow to a position at the University of Michigan would be subject to the rules governing new appointments.

Fellows are expected to be in residence in Ann Arbor for the academic years of appointment (September to May) and to participate in the activities of the Society of Fellows. Off-campus research leave during academic terms will be permitted only in rare cases, only for brief periods of time, and only upon written application to the Chair of the Society well in advance of the proposed leave.

Eligibility:
The Society invites applications from qualified candidates who are at the beginning of their academic careers, having received the Ph.D. or comparable professional or artistic degree between June 1, 2009 and September 1, 2012. Applications from degree candidates and recipients of the Ph.D. from the University of Michigan will not be considered. Non-US citizens may apply.

University of Michigan Gerald R. Ford School of Public Policy National Poverty Center Grants

The purpose of these grants is to provide outstanding American minority scholars and other scholars who are members of a group that is underrepresented in the social sciences the opportunity to spend a year or two conducting research and pursuing extensive training in residence at the National Poverty Center at the Gerald R. Ford School of Public Policy.

Fellows will participate in a number of seminars on Poverty Research and will be supervised by Sheldon Danziger, Henry J. Meyer Distinguished University Professor of Public Policy and Director, National Poverty Center. During the fellowship period, scholars receive stipends of $50,000 per calendar year, beginning as early as July 1st, but no later than September 1st.

Preference will be given to scholars who are engaged in poverty research and who received the Ph.D. after 2005. Applicants must be American citizens and members of a group that is underrepresented in the social sciences.

The Harvard Academy for International and Area Studies Academy Scholars Program: Post-doctoral Fellowship

The Academy Scholars Program identifies and supports outstanding scholars at the start of their careers whose work combines disciplinary excellence in the social sciences (including history and law) with a command of the language, history, or culture of non-Western countries or regions. Their scholarship may elucidate domestic, comparative, or transnational issues, past or present. Each year four to five Academy Scholars are named for two-year appointments. Academy Scholars are expected to reside in the Cambridge/Boston area for the duration of their appointments unless traveling for pre-approved research purposes.

Post-doctoral Academy Scholars will receive an annual stipend of $56,000. This stipend is supplemented by funding for conference and research travel, research assistants, and health insurance coverage. Some teaching is permitted but not required.

Applications are welcome from qualified persons without regard to nationality, gender, or race.

Princeton University Society of Fellows in the Liberal Arts Postdoctoral Fellowship

The Princeton Society of Fellows in the Liberal Arts, comprised of recent Ph.D. recipients in the humanities and in selected social and natural sciences, seeks to promote innovative interdisciplinary approaches to scholarship and teaching. Postdoctoral (Cotsen) Fellows are appointed for three-year terms to pursue research and teach half-time in their academic department, in the Program in Humanistic Studies, or in other university programs.

Four three-year Postdoctoral Fellowships will be awarded this year (two open Fellowships in the Humanities and Social Sciences, one targeted Fellowship in East Asian Studies (EAS), and one targeted Fellowship in Humanistic Studies (HUM)). The stipend for academic year 2012-13 will be approximately $76,000. Fellows are provided with a shared office, a personal computer, a research account of $5000 a year, and access to university grants, benefits and other resources. Fellows are expected to reside in or near Princeton during the academic year in order that they can attend weekly seminars and participate fully in the intellectual life of the Society.

Please note the Society's dates of degree eligibility. These are firm dates with no exceptions.

a) Candidates already holding the PhD degree at time of application:
You must have received your degree between January 1, 2011 and September 30, 2012. The receipt of the PhD is determined by the date on which you fulfilled all requirements for the degree at your institution, including the defense and filing of the dissertation.

b) Candidates who are ABD (all but dissertation) at time of application:
If you will not meet the September 30, 2012, deadline for receipt of PhD but are expected to have fulfilled all conditions for the degree, including defense and filing of dissertation, by June 15, 2013, you may still apply for a postdoctoral fellowship provided you have completed a substantial portion of the dissertation (approximately half). We ask that you include in your dossier a letter confirming your “progress to degree” from either your Department Chair or your Director of Graduate Studies.

US citizens and non-citizens, regardless of race, national origin, religion, sex, sexual orientation, age, marital status, or disability, are eligible to apply.

Fellows must reside in or near Princeton during the academic year of their fellowship term in order that they can attend weekly seminars and other events on campus.

Princeton University is an equal opportunity employer and complies with applicable EEO and affirmative action regulations.

Dumbarton Oaks Postdoctoral Teaching Fellowships in Byzantine Studies

The Program in Byzantine Studies within Dumbarton Oaks Research Library and Collection, in association with Georgetown University, announces a three-year postdoctoral teaching fellowship (2012-15), with an optional fourth year of teaching (2015-16), in post-classical Greek language and literature. This is the third of three positions, each with a different local university and with a different disciplinary focus. The goal of Dumbarton Oaks in sponsoring these three fellowships is to stimulate American Byzantine Studies, especially in the DC area, through early-career fellowships for American or US-educated scholars. No support for pursuit of visas will be provided.

The fellowship to be offered for 2012–15 (+ 2015–16) will be in Byzantine Greek language and literature (CE 300–1500). The teaching component of the fellowship will take place at Georgetown University. Candidates with a broad knowledge of Greek of all periods will be welcomed. Applicants must have completed all requirements for the doctoral degree by May 2012, but no earlier than June 2006. Candidates must be citizens of the United States or Canada or else graduates of a North American university, and must have an excellent command of spoken and written English.

The salary will be $60,000 per year, and fellows will be eligible for health insurance. In addition to their salary, fellows will receive $1000 per year for research expenses, and travel expenses when presenting a paper at an academic conference (annual limit of $1,000 for a domestic conference or $1200 for an international conference). Fellows are responsible for their own travel and moving expenses, as well as for finding and paying for their housing in the Washington area. The place of residence during the summer months will be optional; fellows may work at Dumbarton Oaks or travel elsewhere.

Smithsonian Institution Molecular Evolution Fellowship

The 2012 Smithsonian Postdoctoral Fellowship in Molecular Evolution will be offered to support research on molecular evolution and analytical methods in evolution at the Smithsonian Institution. The Smithsonian's molecular research facilities are located at National Museum of Natural History (NMNH) and the National Zoological Park (NZP) in the Washington, D.C. area, and at the Smithsonian Tropical Research Institute (STRI) in the Republic of Panama but collaboration with other facilities (SERC, MCI, etc.) is encouraged and potential advisors/hosts may be from any of the Smithsonian’s various Museums and Research Institutes. Applicants interested in conducting research at these facilities are strongly encouraged to contact potential advisors/hosts prior to proposal preparation and submission.

The stipend for Molecular Evolution Fellows is based on $45,000 per year and is prorated for periods between 12 and 24 months. In addition to the stipend, a travel allowance to assist with the fellow’s temporary relocation to the Smithsonian is offered. Research supplies will be provided by the host unit. To the extent possible, all equipment and supplies necessary to complete the research will be provided by the host department, but applications should include a budget detailing the project’s research equipment needs and explain any other anticipated sources of support. This budget should not include costs for relocation to the Smithsonian, which are awarded separately. Travel or living expenses of dependents are not provided. All funds provided under Smithsonian fellowships, including stipends and research and travel allowances, are subject to tax.

Eligibility:
Applicants must propose to conduct research at the Smithsonian Institution for a period of 12 to 24 months. Applicants must have completed or be near completion of the Ph.D. Recipients who have not completed the Ph.D. at the time of application must provide proof of completion of the degree before the fellowship begins. No employee or contractor of the Smithsonian Institution may hold a Smithsonian fellowship during the time of his/her employment or contract, nor may an award be offered to any person who has been employed by or under contract to the Institution in the previous year, without the prior approval of the Office of Fellowships. Applicants whose native language is not English are expected to have the ability to write and converse fluently in English. All application materials must be presented in English (foreign transcripts may be translated).

National Geographic Committee for Research and Exploration Postdoctoral Grant

The National Geographic Society awards grants for scientific field research and exploration through its Committee for Research and Exploration. All proposed projects must have both a geographical dimension and relevance to other scientific fields and be of broad scientific interest.

Applications are generally limited to the following disciplines: anthropology, archaeology, astronomy, biology, botany, geography, geology, oceanography, paleontology, and zoology.

In addition the committee is emphasizing multidisciplinary projects that address environmental issues (e.g., loss of biodiversity and habitat, effects of human-population pressures).

Funding is not restricted to United States citizens. Researchers planning work in foreign countries should include at least one local collaborator as part of their research teams. The committee will not consider applications seeking support solely for laboratory work or archival research. While grants are awarded on the basis of scientific merit and exist independent of the Society's other divisions, grant recipients are expected to provide the Society with rights of first refusal for popular publication of their findings.

While grant amounts vary greatly, most range from U.S. $15,000 to $20,000. There is no set quantity of grants awarded, but budget constraints keep the number to approximately 250 per year.

Eligibility
Applicants are expected to have advanced degrees (Ph.D. or equivalent) and be associated with an educational organization or institution. Independent researchers or those pursuing a Ph.D.-level degree may apply, but awards to non-Ph.D. applicants are rare. As a general rule, all applicants are expected to have published a minimum of three articles in peer-reviewed scientific journals.

Application:
Before receiving an application form, each project director must submit a pre-application form online. https://www.grantrequest.com/SID_69/Default.asp?CT=CT &SA=SNA&FID=35021&SESID=0cc95899be5d40da856da0ef59279502 department for each Miller Fellow who is hosted by an academic department on the Berkeley campus. All research is performed in the facilities provided by the host UC Berkeley academic department. Miller Research Fellowships are intended for exceptional young scientists of great promise who have recently been awarded, or who are about to be awarded, the doctoral degree. Normally, Miller Fellows are expected to begin their Fellowship shortly after being awarded their Ph.D. A short period as a post-doctoral fellow elsewhere does not exclude eligibility. However, applicants who have already completed substantial postdoctoral training are unlikely to be successful except in unusual circumstances. A nominee cannot hold a paid or unpaid position on the Berkeley campus at the time of nomination or throughout the competition and award cycle. Nominees who are non-US citizens must show eligibility for obtaining J-1 Scholar visa status for the duration of the Miller Fellowship.

Miller Fellowships are granted for a period of three years, generally beginning August 1 and ending on July 31. Starting dates are negotiable but must commence between July 1 and October 1. The Institute provides a stipend of $60,000 with annual increases on subsequent anniversary dates. This stipend is not be be construed as salary for teaching or for duties rendered to the University of California. Miller Fellows are entitled to all normal holidays observed by the University and are granted an annual bank of 24 days of personal time off. Personal time does not carry forward. Twelve days of sick leave are granted annually. Miller Fellows receive a research fund of $12,000 per annum to be used in support of research during the Miller Fellowship. There is provision for travel to (but not away from) Berkeley for Miller Fellows and their immediate families. An additional allowance of $3,000 is allowed for the transport of personal belongings. Benefits including medical, dental, vision, short term disability and life insurance are provided, with Miller Fellows making a small contribution beginning in 2012. You may voluntarily enroll in long term disability. All University of California postdocs are exclusively represented by the UAW and are subject to the terms of the contract including payment of membership dues or agency fees. Approximately eight to ten Fellowships are awarded each year.

The Shalem Center Postdoctoral Fellowship

The Shalem Center's Institute for Philosophy, Political Theory, and Religion offers a full-time residency program and living stipend for scholars who wish to study the great works of the Western tradition side by side with classical Jewish sources. The postdoctoral program works from the premise that the sources of Jewish insight, experience and wisdom have yet to be fully brought into the tradition of Western thought. Shalem's postdoctoral fellows aspire to academic postings in Israel and around the world. The fellowship includes a weekly works-in-progress seminar; lectures by visiting scholars; completion of a significant independent research project known as the Shalem Essay; and participation in the broader intellectual life of the Center.

Fellowships are granted for one year to postdoctoral students who wish to pursue studies at the Shalem Center in Jerusalem.

The Japan Society for the Promotion of Science (JSPS) Fellowship

The JSPS Fellowship Program provides recent PhD recipients and ABDs with opportunities to conduct research in Japan under the leadership of a host researcher. Fellows are encouraged to advance their own research and at the same time closely collaborate with young Japanese researchers and contribute to Japanese research communities.

Applications are welcome from all social science and humanities disciplines and need not be explicitly related to the study of Japan. Projects must include work with colleagues and resources in Japan and propose a single, continuous stay in Japan from 1 to 12 months (short-term) or 1 to 2 years (long-term).

Eligibility:
Scholars who have previously received funding from JSPS for 12 months or longer are not eligible to apply for JSPS fellowships. JSPS does not extend fellowships to scholars employed in the institutions under jurisdiction of the U.S. Department of Defense. In addition, candidates for the Long-term Fellowship must possess U.S. citizenship or permanent residency status. Permanent residents must provide a copy of a permanent resident card ("green card"). Researchers of Japanese nationality are ineligible. Candidates for the Short-term Fellowship must possess U.S. citizenship or permanent residency status. Permanent residents must provide a copy of a permanent resident card ("green card"). Citizens of other countries may be eligible if they have completed a master's or Ph.D. course at a U.S. university and, upon completing the course, have for at least three continuous years conducted high-level research in the U.S. Researchers of Japanese nationality must be either U.S. citizens or permanent residents.

Japan Foundation Research Fellowship

In order to promote Japanese Studies, this program provides support to outstanding scholars in the field by offering the opportunity to conduct research in Japan. Research Fellowships are intended for scholars and researchers in the humanities and social sciences who wish to conduct research in Japan for periods ranging from 2 to 12 months.

Eligibility:
Applicants must be American citizens, American citizens temporarily residing abroad, or permanent residents of the United States. Americans with permanent residency abroad should submit their applications to the Japan Foundation's office in the country where they reside or to the Japanese diplomatic mission of their resident country no later than December 1, 2012, using a different form. Applicants residing in the United States who are neither U.S. citizens nor permanent residents should submit their applications to the Foundation's Tokyo Headquarters no later than December 1, 2012, using a different form. Applicants must hold a Ph.D. or equivalent professional experience in research, teaching and writing in the fields of the humanities or social sciences. Previous recipients of Japan Foundation fellowships, such as the Japanese Studies Fellowship, or Abe Fellowship, etc., are eligible to reapply only if, on April 1, 2012, a full three years have elapsed since the termination of their most recent fellowship. Previous Short-Term Research Fellows may reapply after one full year from the termination of their most recent fellowships. Applicants must be in good health. Applicants must be proficient in either Japanese or English. Applicants must secure all affiliation arrangements by the application deadline. In principle, applicants must be able to stay continuously in Japan for the term of fellowship.

Newberry Library Fellowships

Long-term fellowships are available to post-doctoral scholars for periods of four to twelve months. Applicants for post-doctoral awards must hold the Ph.D. at the time of application. These grants support individual research and promote serious intellectual exchange through active participation in the Library's scholarly activities, including a biweekly fellows' seminar. The stipends for these fellowships are $4,200 per month; awardees must indicate in their applications how many months they intend to be in residence at the Newberry. Applicants may combine these fellowship awards with sabbatical or other stipendiary support.

SSRC Abe Fellowship

The Abe Fellowship is designed to encourage international multidisciplinary research on topics of pressing global concern. Successful applicants will be those individuals whose work and interests match these program goals. Abe Fellows are expected to demonstrate a long-term commitment to these goals by participating in program activities over the course of their careers.

Terms of the Fellowship are flexible and are designed to meet the needs of researchers at different stages in their careers. The program provides Abe Fellows with a minimum of 3 and maximum of 12 months of full-time support over a 24 month period. Fellowship tenure must begin between April 1 and December 31 of a given year. Fellowship tenure need not be continuous, but must be concluded within 24 months of initial activation of the Fellowship. The Fellowship is intended to support an individual researcher, regardless of whether that individual is working alone or in collaboration with others. Candidates should propose to spend at least one third of the Fellowship tenure in residence abroad in Japan or the United States. In addition, the Abe Fellowship Committee reserves the right to recommend additional networking opportunities overseas. Abe Fellows will be expected to affiliate with an American or Japanese institution appropriate to their research. Fellowship funds may also be spent on additional residence and field work in third countries as appropriate to individual projects. Fellows will be required to attend specific Abe Fellowship Program events.

Eligibility:
This competition is open to citizens of the United States and Japan as well as to nationals of other countries who can demonstrate strong and serious long-term affiliations with research communities in Japan or the United States. Applicants must hold a Ph.D. or the terminal degree in their field, or have attained an equivalent level of professional experience at the time of application. Previous language training is not a prerequisite for this Fellowship. However, if the research project requires language ability, the applicant should provide evidence of adequate proficiency to complete the project. Applications from researchers in professions other than academia are encouraged with the expectation that the product of the fellowship will contribute to the wider body of knowledge on the topic specified. Projects proposing to address key policy issues or seeking to develop a concrete policy proposal must reflect non-partisan positions.

Wenner-Gren Foundation Hunt Postdoctoral Fellowship

Hunt Postdoctoral Fellowships support the writing-up of already completed research. The fellowship is awarded to scholars in the earlier stages of their careers, when they frequently lack the time and resources to develop their research for publication. Scholars with a Ph.D. in hand for no more than ten years (from the application deadline) are eligible to apply. A maximum of eight Hunt Postdoctoral Fellowships are awarded annually.

By providing funds for scholars to devote themselves full-time to writing, the Foundation aims to enable a new generation of scholars to publish significant works that will impact the development of anthropology. The program contributes to the Foundation's overall mission to support basic research in anthropology and to ensure that the discipline continues to be a source of vibrant and significant work that furthers our understanding of humanity's cultural and biological origins, development, and variation. The Foundation supports research that demonstrates a clear link to anthropological theory and debates, and promises to make a solid contribution to advancing these ideas. There is no preference for any methodology, research location, or subfield. The Foundation particularly welcomes proposals that employ a comparative perspective, can generate innovative approaches or ideas, and/or integrate two or more subfields.

Hunt Postdoctoral Fellowships are nonrenewable, and provide US $40,000 of financial support for twelve months of continuous full-time writing. Applicants requesting shorter time periods will receive a pro-rated award as appropriate (e.g., a six-month project would be awarded $20,000). Applicants can apply regardless of institutional affiliation, country of residence, or nationality.

Eligibility:
Applicants must have a Ph.D. or equivalent at the time of application. Applicants must have received a Ph.D. or equivalent within ten years of the application deadline. Qualified scholars are eligible without regard to nationality, institutional, or departmental affiliation although preference is given to applicants who are untenured or do not yet have a permanent academic position. The Hunt Postdoctoral Fellowship is to support a continuous period of full-time academic writing. The research that forms the basis of the writing project is expected to be completed at the time of application. In special circumstances and with prior approval of the Foundation, recipients may use part of their stipend

* = Deadline for last year. Check website or contact for current deadlines for a minor research component if necessary to complete their proposed publication/s. No research funds in addition to the basic stipend are available as part of the Hunt Postdoctoral Fellowship. The fellowship may be used to support the preparation of a book or monograph manuscript, journal articles, book chapters, or a combination of these forms of publication. The Foundation cannot accept an application from a prior grantee unless all requirements of a previous grant have been completed. Please contact the Foundation for more information if this situation applies. Prior recipients of Hunt Postdoctoral Fellowships are not eligible to apply for a second fellowship for a different writing project. Hunt Postdoctoral Fellowship applications that were unsuccessful in a prior funding cycle may be resubmitted only twice. A resubmission statement explaining how the application is different from the prior application and how the referees’ comments have been addressed must accompany resubmitted applications. If a fellowship is awarded, the applicant must agree to comply with the Requirements and Conditions of the Hunt Postdoctoral Fellowship.

American Museum of Natural History

The Postdoctoral Research Fellowship Program of the American Museum provides training to postdoctoral investigators and established scientists to carry out a specific project within a limited time period. The project must fit into the Museum’s areas of interest. The program is designed to advance the training of the participant by having him/her pursue a project in association with museum professionals in a museum setting. Appointments are typically made for up to two years. Postdoctoral Fellows are expected to be in residence at the Museum. Limited relocation, research, and publication support is provided. Postdoctoral fellows may conduct research in any area of the AMNH, with special funding options available for those focusing on North American fauna and marine biology.

The Smithsonian Tropical Research Institute (STRI) Tupper Postdoctoral Fellowship

The Smithsonian Tropical Research Institute (STRI) located in the Republic of Panama is a division of the Smithsonian Institution in Washington DC and maintains research facilities in different marine and terrestrial locations on the Isthmus of Panama. STRI invites applications for the Earl S. Tupper three-year postdoctoral fellowship in the areas represented by its scientific staff. Disciplines include ecology, anthropology, paleontology, paleoecology, evolutionary biology, molecular phylogenetics, biogeography, animal behavior, neurobiology, soils sciences, and physiology of tropical plants and animals. Research should be based at one of the STRI facilities; proposals that include comparative research in other tropical countries will be considered. One fellowship is awarded annually.

This is a three-year postdoctoral fellowship with an annual stipend of $40,000 and yearly travel and research allotments.

Awards are based upon merit, without regard to race, color, religion, sex, national origin, citizenship, age or condition of handicap of the applicant.

Columbia University Society of Fellows in the Humanities

The Columbia Society of Fellows in the Humanities, with grants from the Andrew W. Mellon Foundation and the William R. Kenan Trust, will appoint a number of postdoctoral fellows in the humanities for the academic year 2012-2013. We invite applications from qualified candidates who have received the Ph.D. between 1 January 2010 and 1 July 2012. Fellows are appointed as Lecturers in appropriate departments at Columbia University and as postdoctoral
The Luce Scholars Program is a nationally competitive fellowship program. It was launched by the Henry Luce Foundation in 1974 to enhance the understanding of Asia among potential leaders in American society. The program provides stipends, language training, and individualized professional placement in Asia for 15-18 Luce Scholars each year, and welcomes applications from college seniors, graduate students, and young professionals in a variety of fields who have had limited exposure to Asia. The University of Michigan is one of 75 participating universities. A nominating institution may submit three nominations for each year’s Luce Scholars competition.

Eligibility:
To be eligible for the Luce Scholars Program, candidates must be U.S. citizens who would not have reached their 30th birthday by July 1st of the year they enter the program. Candidates must have earned at least a bachelor’s degree or reasonably expect to receive that degree by July 1st of the year they enter the program. Candidates must be in physical health that will not restrict them from working in a foreign environment. Candidates need not presently be on campus or formally affiliated with the nominating institution. They may be selected from graduating seniors, graduate or professional students currently at the nominating institution, from recent alumni, or others the nominating institution deems appropriate. The intent of the program is to provide an immersion experience in Asia for an outstanding group of young Americans who would not otherwise have the opportunity to come to know Asia intimately. Those who already have significant experience in Asia or Asian studies are not eligible. Candidates however may have taken Asian language or Asia-focused courses on a U.S. campus (without majoring in Asian Studies). They may have spent up to a total of eight weeks, or have participated in a university-organized summer program, in one or more countries where Luce Scholars are placed. Luce Scholars are chosen without regard to sex, race, religion, sexual orientation, ethnic background, marital status, or financial need.

Applications:
*Institutional nomination is the sole route to consideration. Applications submitted directly to the foundation will not be accepted. University of Michigan students and alumni must submit their applications to the International Institute.

UNITED STATES CITIZENS – GENERAL

Foreign Language and Area Fellowships (FLAS)

A Foreign Language and Area Studies (FLAS) Fellowship provides tuition and a stipend to students studying designated foreign languages in combination with area studies or international aspects of professional studies. The priority is to encourage the study of less commonly taught languages. FLAS Fellowships are administered by the University of Michigan Area Studies Centers and are awarded competitively through annual fellowship competitions. The U.S. Department of Education (US/ED) funds these awards under the provisions of Title VI of the Higher Education Act. The amount of funding and number of awards granted is contingent upon annual US/ED program approval, federal regulations, as well as continued congressional funding, all of which may change from year to year.

Academic Year Graduate FLAS Fellowships are awarded to graduate and professional school students at the master’s and doctoral level to study modern foreign languages and related area and/or international studies. FLAS recipients receive full tuition, mandatory fees, and a stipend during the fall and winter terms. FLAS awards cannot be deferred. The Academic Year FLAS award for 2012-13 covers full tuition, mandatory fees, and a $15,000 stipend (estimated). FLAS awards cannot be deferred.

Summer Graduate FLAS Fellowships are for graduate and professional school students to support summer modern language study. These awards are given only for intensive language classes that teach the equivalent of a University of Michigan academic year language class. Authorization must be obtained in order to take a course not offered in approved U.S.-based programs. The Summer FLAS covers tuition and required fees for a summer language program (up to $5000 USD) and a stipend of $2,500. In some cases, a travel award of up to $1,000 may also be made. FLAS awards cannot be deferred.

Eligibility:
Each FLAS grantee must be a U.S. citizen or permanent resident and an applicant to or currently enrolled student in a full-time University of Michigan graduate degree or professional school program that combines modern foreign language training with international or area studies or with the international aspects of professional training or other fields of study. A student who already possesses language fluency equivalent to an educated native speaker in the language for which the award is sought will be assigned the lowest consideration in the selection of fellows. FLAS Fellowships are generally not tenable for dissertation writing. In rare cases, FLAS Fellowships may be awarded for in-country field research for the dissertation when a strong case can be made that such research results in extensive use of the language equivalent to a year of language study. Prior approval must be secured from US/ED.

Application:
*Continuing students must apply to the respective Centers for fellowship information and application. Award selections are made by the respective center with Departmental nomination required. *Incoming students who intend to apply for a FLAS can request that their application materials be photocopied and sent to a specific center by submitting a FLAS Fellowship Intent Form with their application.

Fulbright U.S. Student Program

The Fulbright Program offers a variety of grant opportunities, including comprehensive Fulbright grants. Additional grants are available on a country-by-country basis, including opportunities in travel, teaching, and business.

Eligibility:
Applicants must be U.S. citizens at the time of application. Permanent residents are not eligible and hold a B.A. degree or the equivalent before the start of the grant. Applicants may hold a J.D. degree at the time of application, but not a doctorate. Applicants must be in good health, and have sufficient proficiency in the written and spoken language of the host country to communicate with the people and to carry out the proposed study. This is especially important for projects in the social sciences and the humanities.

Harold and Vivian Shapiro/John Malik/Jean Forrest Awards

These awards were established by Harold T. Shapiro, former President of the University of Michigan, and Vivian Shapiro, former faculty member at the University of Michigan, to assist graduate students with interest payments on unsubsidized educational loans. Dr. John Malik, a devoted Rackham alumnus in Physics, established an endowment for the same purpose. Jean Forrest earned her master’s degree from Rackham in 1976, and in gratitude for her education, established an endowed fund to support graduate students.

with financial need. All three awards are made through a single competition. The maximum award will be $1,000 per student.

Eligibility:
Full-time students in any Rackham degree program may apply. Students must have completed one full term before the fellowship deadline. Awards are intended to assist with interest charges accruing on education loans that must be paid while a student is in graduate school. U.S. citizens or permanent residents with $10,000 or more in unsubsidized educational loans (both private and federal) will be given first consideration. Students may apply for more than one award, but preference is given to first-time applicants. Selection will be based on financial need and academic merit.

ACLS/SSRC/NEH International and Area Studies Fellowships

In order to encourage humanistic research in area studies, special funding by the National Endowment for the Humanities and the ACLS has been set aside for up to ten ACLS/SSRC/NEH International and Area Studies Fellowships to be designated among the successful applicants to the central ACLS Fellowship competition. Scholars pursuing research and writing on the societies and cultures of Asia, Africa, the Middle East, Latin America and the Caribbean, Eastern Europe, and the former Soviet Union will be eligible for these special fellowships.

Eligibility:
U.S. citizenship or permanent resident status as of the application deadline date; a Ph.D. degree conferred at least two years before the application deadline (an established scholar who can demonstrate the equivalent of the Ph.D. in publications and professional experience may also qualify); a lapse of at least two years between the last "supported research leave" and September 1, 2012, including any such leave to be taken or initiated during the 2012-13 academic year. Therefore, to be eligible, an individual's most recent supported research leave must have concluded prior to September 1, 2012. (Supported research leave is defined as the equivalent of one semester or more of time free from teaching or other employment to pursue scholarly research or writing supported by sabbatical pay or other institutional funding, fellowships and grants, or a combination of these. This definition applies to independent scholars as well as those with institutional affiliations.).

Council of American Overseas Research Centers (CAORC) Multi-Country Fellowship

The Council of American Overseas Research Centers (CAORC) Multi-Country Fellowship Program supports advanced regional or trans-regional research in the humanities, social sciences, or allied natural sciences for U.S. master's students, doctoral candidates, and scholars who have already earned their Ph.D. Preference will be given to candidates examining comparative and/or cross-regional research. Applicants are eligible to apply as individuals or in teams.

Scholars must carry out research in two or more countries outside the United States, at least one of which hosts a participating American overseas research center. Approximately ten awards of up to $12,000 each will be given in the doctoral candidate/post-doctoral scholar competition.

Eligibility:
Eligibility requirements apply at the time of application. Applicants must meet all of the following requirements and will be considered without regard to race, color, religion, sex, age, national origin and/or disability. Must be a U.S. citizen. Proof of citizenship (photocopy of passport) must be shown upon award notification. Must have a Ph.D., be a U.S. doctoral candidate who has completed all Ph.D. requirements with the exception of the dissertation, or be enrolled in a Master's degree granting program. Must be engaged in the study of and research in the humanities, social sciences, and allied natural sciences. Must wish to conduct research of regional or trans-regional significance in two or more countries outside the United States, one of which must host a participating American overseas research center (ORC).

Council for European Studies Pre-dissertation Fellowship

* = Deadline for last year. Check website or contact for current deadlines
Currently, the Council for European Studies offers three different pre-dissertation research fellowships, all designed to support early dissertation research on topics in European Studies. The first of these is funded by the Andrew W. Mellon Foundation, which each year supports twenty fellowships for young scholars engaged in researching a range of topics in European Studies. The second is funded by the Luso-American Foundation, which each year supports the pre-dissertation research of one young scholar focusing specifically on Portuguese Studies. And, the third is funded by the Society for the Anthropology of Europe, which provides one fellowship each year in support of the pre-dissertation research of a promising young anthropologist of Europe.

Eligibility:
CES Pre-Dissertation Fellowships are intended to fund students’ first major research project in Europe. Students who have already engaged in extensive field work and study in Europe, related to their dissertation, are not eligible. Applicants must be in the exploratory, early stage of their research. Also, applicants are expected to have already finished the majority of their doctoral coursework, and they must be currently enrolled in a doctoral program at a university that is a member of the Council for European Studies’ Academic Consortium.

SSRC Eurasia Program Fellowships – Predissertation, Dissertation Development, and Postdoctoral Research Awards

The Eurasia Program offers three types of fellowship support in 2012, providing financial and academic support to graduate students in the early stages of dissertation development, Ph.D. candidates near completion of their doctoral programs in the social sciences and related humanities, and young scholars within five years of the completion of their Ph.D.

This program also works to support outreach; build relationships between the policy community and the academic community; help build national capability by engaging diverse experts in the exploration of new ideas and perspectives; and create new knowledge and research.

Eligibility
All applicants must be citizens or permanent residents of the United States as of November 15, 2011. Pre-Dissertation Awards target graduate students in the first three years of study in a Ph.D. program. Awards require evidence of ethics training and University IRB approval.

Funds are to be used before applicants defend their dissertation proposals.

Dissertation Development Awards seek applicants who have obtained ABD status (must have completed all requirements for the Ph.D. degree except for the dissertation) by the application submission deadline. Applicants should demonstrate the ability to complete their dissertation by the end of the fellowship support period (August 2013), and demonstrate evidence of University cost-sharing.

Post-Doctoral Research Awards applicants should be within five years of the completion of their Ph.D., and gainfully employed in teaching and or research. Only individual applicants are considered.

NSEP Boren Fellowships

Boren Fellowships provide American graduate students with the resources and encouragement they need to acquire skills and experiences in areas of the world critical to the future security of our nation, in exchange for their commitment to seek work in the federal government. Boren Fellowships provide support for overseas or domestic study, or a combination of both.

Boren Fellowship awards are made for a minimum of 12 weeks and maximum of 24 months. Overseas programs can be no longer than one year. Boren-funded programs can begin no earlier than June 1, 2012 and no later than March 1, 2013.

Boren Fellowships promote long term linguistic and cultural immersion. Therefore, all overseas study must be a minimum of 12 weeks, and preference will be given to applicants proposing overseas programs of 6 months or longer.

The program focuses on geographic areas, languages, and fields of study deemed critical to U.S. national security. It draws on a broad definition of national security, recognizing that the scope of national security has expanded to include not only the traditional concerns of protecting and promoting American well-being, but also the challenges of global society, including: sustainable development, environmental degradation, global disease and hunger, population growth and migration, and economic competitiveness. All applicants must demonstrate how their study programs and future goals are connected to this broad understanding of national security.

UNITED STATES CITIZENS – PREDOCTORAL

Jacob K. Javits Fellowships Program

This program provides fellowships to students of superior academic ability—selected on the basis of demonstrated achievement, financial need, and exceptional promise—to undertake study at the doctoral and Master of Fine Arts level in selected fields of arts, humanities, and social sciences.

A board establishes the general policies for the program, selects the fields in which fellowships are to be awarded, and appoints distinguished panels to select fellows.

Panels of experts appointed by the Javits Fellowship Board (Board) select fellows according to criteria established by the Board. Students must demonstrate financial need by filing the Free Application for Federal Student Aid.

Eligibility:
Eligibility is limited to individuals who at the time of application will be entering a doctoral program in academic year 2011-2012 and/or who, at the time of application, have not yet completed their first full year of study in the doctoral program for which they are seeking support. Eligibility is limited to U.S. citizens or nationals, permanent residents of the U.S., or citizens of any one of the Freely Associated States. Applicants must be eligible to be accepted to or currently attending a graduate program leading to a doctorate or a terminal master's degree in an eligible field of study at an institution of higher education approved by an accrediting agency recognized by the Secretary of the Department of Education. Applicants attending a foreign institution are ineligible.

The Beinecke Scholarship

The program seeks to encourage and enable highly motivated students to pursue opportunities available to them and to be courageous in the selection of a graduate course of study in the arts, humanities and social sciences. Since 1975 the program has selected more than 490 college juniors from more than 100 different undergraduate institutions for support during graduate study at any accredited university. Each scholar receives $4,000 immediately prior to entering graduate school and an additional $30,000 while attending graduate school. There are no geographic restrictions on the use of the scholarship, and recipients are allowed to supplement the award with other scholarships, assistantships and research grants. Scholars are encouraged to begin graduate study as soon as possible following receipt of their undergraduate degree, and must utilize their entire award within five years.

Each year approximately 100 colleges and universities are invited to nominate a student for a Beinecke Scholarship, and 20 new scholarships will be awarded in 2012. To be eligible to receive a Beinecke Scholarship, a student must be a college junior, a citizen of the United States and have a documented history of receiving need-based financial aid during his or her undergraduate years.

Ford Foundation Predoctoral Fellowships

This year the program will award approximately 40 predoctoral fellowships. These fellowships provide three years of support for individuals engaged in graduate study leading to a Doctor of Philosophy (Ph.D.) or Doctor of Science (Sc.D.) degree. Predoctoral fellowships will be awarded in a national competition administered by the National Research Council (NRC) of the National Academies on behalf of the Ford Foundation. The awards will be made to individuals who, in the judgment of the review panels, have demonstrated superior academic achievement, are committed to a career in teaching and research at the college or university level, show promise of future achievement as scholars and teachers, and are well prepared to use diversity as a resource for enriching the education of all students. The annual stipend is $20,000.

Eligibility:
All citizens or nationals of the United States regardless of race, national origin, religion, gender, age, disability, or sexual orientation; individuals with evidence of superior academic achievement (such as grade point average, class rank, honors or other designations); individuals committed to a career in teaching and research at the college or university level; individuals enrolled in or planning to enroll in an eligible research-based program leading to a Ph.D. or Sc.D. degree at a U.S. educational institution; individuals who require a minimum of three years study to complete their Ph.D./Sc.D. degree as of the fall semester; individuals who have not earned a doctoral degree at any time, in any field.

National Science Foundation Graduate Research Fellowships

The purpose of the NSF Graduate Research Fellowship Program (GRFP) is to help ensure the vitality and diversity of the scientific and engineering workforce in the United States. The program recognizes and supports outstanding graduate students who are pursuing research-based masters and doctoral degrees in fields within NSF’s mission. The GRFP provides three years of support for the graduate education of individuals who have demonstrated their potential for significant achievements in science and engineering research. About 25 awards are in anthropology. They have tenure of three years and are selected on the basis of a national competition. Awards cover full tuition and an annual stipend of $30,000. Application is made directly to the National Science Foundation. Advice from a faculty member in writing the application is often helpful. Application materials are available from Rackham or directly from the NSF.

Eligibility:
Must be a US citizen, US national or permanent resident alien; must be a graduating senior, have completed a B.S./B.A. degree in a STEM field, or are in their 1st year or the first semester of their 2nd year in graduate school; and, must be pursuing a research-based master's or doctoral degree at an accredited US institution in the science, technology, engineering and mathematics fields supported by NSF.

Canadian Studies Doctoral Student Research Award

The Doctoral Student Research Award promotes research that contributes to a better knowledge and understanding of Canada, its relationship with the United States, and its international affairs. The grant is designed to give doctoral students an opportunity to conduct part of their research in Canada. We support projects representing a wide range of disciplines in the social sciences and humanities. We are particularly interested in projects that focus on policy, especially in these priority areas: North American economic competitiveness, energy and environment, security, and Arctic issues.

Eligibility:

This program is intended for doctoral students at accredited U.S. and Canadian four-year colleges and universities whose dissertations are related in substantial part to the study of Canada or Canada–U.S. relations. Candidates must be citizens or permanent residents of the United States and should have completed all doctoral requirements except the dissertation when they apply for a grant. Applicants are ineligible to receive the same grant in two consecutive years.

UNITED STATES CITIZENS – POSTDOCTORAL
American Research in Humanities in China

This program is open to scholars in the humanities and related social sciences who have received a Ph.D. or its equivalent by the time of application. Support is offered to specialists in all fields of the humanities and humanities-related social sciences, and is not limited to China scholars. Fellowship tenure is from four months to one year of continuous research in China. The fellowship period must fall between July 1, 2012 and December 31, 2013. However, awardees planning to begin using fellowships as early as July 2012 must be prepared to delay entry into China if it is not possible to secure placement before September. The program is funded by the National Endowment for the Humanities. Stipends are calculated based upon the length the awardee's stay in China, and include allowances for travel, living expenses, and research/affiliation fees. Stipends for four to five months of research cannot exceed $25,200. The maximum award is $50,400. The award may be reduced if the candidate also receives full or partial salary during the fellowship period. There is no financial support for dependents.

Eligibility:
An applicant must be a citizen or permanent resident of the United States who has lived in the United States continuously for at least three years as of the application deadline date; an applicant must hold a Ph.D. degree conferred prior to the application deadline. However, an established scholar who can demonstrate the equivalent of the Ph.D. in publications and professional experience may also qualify.

American Academy of Arts & Sciences

The Visiting Scholars Program (VSP) is an interdisciplinary research fellowship housed at the headquarters of the Academy in Cambridge, Massachusetts. Its purpose is to stimulate and support scholarly work by promising scholars and practitioners in the early stages of their careers and to foster exchange between an emerging generation of scholars and Academy members with shared interests. The Academy seeks proposals that relate to its research areas: Humanities & Culture; Science, Technology & Global Security; Social Policy & American Institutions; and Education. Projects that address American cultural, social, or political issues from the founding period to the present are welcome, as are studies on the history of science. Scholars are chosen by means of a national competition. The Academy conducts the Visiting Scholars Program in association with the Harvard Humanities Center, which provides access to the university’s research facilities and works with the Academy to plan joint lectures, seminars, and informal discussions.

Lurcy Foundation Fellowship

The Georges Lurcy Charitable and Educational Trust seeks to promote friendship and understanding between the peoples of the United States and France and, secondarily, between Americans and Europeans in general. This is achieved by supporting scholarly activities and exchanges which allow members of one society to learn more about the people and civilization of the other society. The Lurcy Fellowship invites applications from a broad range of disciplines, without any preferences as to any field of study or department. The award is a stipend in the amount of $25,000.

Eligibility: The student must be a US citizen or permanent resident of the United States. Applicants should be graduate students whose academic objectives would benefit from this experience.

Comparative Perspectives on Chinese Culture and Society

Funded by the Chiang Ching-kuo Foundation for International Scholarly Exchange, ACLS invites applications for grants to support collaborative work in China studies. In this cycle of competitions we are soliciting proposals in the humanities and related social sciences that adopt an explicitly cross-cultural or comparative perspective. We invite submission of projects that, for example, compare aspects of Chinese history and culture with those of other nations and civilizations, explore the interaction of these nations and civilizations, or engage in cross-cultural research on the relations among the diverse and shifting populations of China. Proposals are expected to be empirically grounded, theoretically informed, and methodologically explicit.

The program will support collaborative work of three types:
Planning Meetings-Grants up to $6,000 will be offered for one-day meetings to plan conferences or workshops, or for less structured explorations, e.g., brainstorming sessions.
Workshops: Grants of $10,000 to $15,000 will be offered for workshops designed to promote discussion and the exchange of ideas on newly available or inadequately researched data or texts in a collegial, seminar-like setting. Workshops are not mini-conferences with the presentation of formal papers

* = Deadline for last year. Check website or contact for current deadlines describing work already done; Conferences-Grants up to $25,000 will be offered for formal research conferences intended to produce significant new research that will be published in a conference volume; the program aims to promote interchange among scholars who may not otherwise have the opportunity to work together. Accordingly, proposals will not be supported for activities of scholars from one institution or that fall within an institution’s normal range of colloquia, symposia, or seminar series. The program will not support regularly scheduled meetings, conventions, or parts thereof. Proposals must include at least one scholar from Taiwan as a participant.

Eligibility:
The principal organizer must be affiliated with a university or research institution and must hold a Ph.D. There are no restrictions as to citizenship of participants or location of the project; however, it is expected the scholars from academic institutions in Taiwan will participate in conferences, workshops, and planning meetings.

American Academy in Rome – The Rome Prize

Each year, the Rome Prize is awarded to 30 emerging artists and scholars in the early or middle stages of their careers who represent the highest standard of excellence in the arts and humanities.

Fellows are chosen from the following disciplines: Architecture, Design, Historic Preservation and Conservation, Landscape Architecture, Literature (awarded only by nomination through the American Academy of Arts and Letters), Musical Composition, Visual Arts, Ancient Studies, Medieval Studies, Renaissance and Early Modern Studies, and Modern Italian Studies. Prize recipients are invited to Rome for six months or eleven months to immerse themselves in the Academy community where they will enjoy a once in a lifetime opportunity to expand their own professional, artistic, or scholarly pursuits, drawing on their colleagues' erudition and experience and on the inestimable resources that Italy, Europe, the Mediterranean, and the Academy have to offer.

Each Rome Prize winner is provided with a stipend, meals, a bedroom with private bath, and a study or studio. Those with children under 18 live in partially subsidized apartments nearby. Winners of 6-month and 11-month fellowships receive stipends of $13,000 and $26,000, respectively. Owing to the fluctuating dollar/euro exchange rate and the high cost of living in Rome, the stipends offered may not cover all expenses. This is especially true for prize winners who come to Rome with spouses, companions and/or children. Fellowships generally begin at the Academy in early September and end in early August. Winners of the 11-month Rome Prize fellowships may select to depart the Academy after nine months with no reduction to the fellowship stipend.

Eligibility:
Applicants for all Rome Prize fellowships, except those applying for the National Endowment for the Humanities post-doctoral fellowship, must be United States citizens at the time of the application. U.S citizens and those foreign nationals who have lived in the United States for three years immediately preceding the application deadline may apply for the NEH post-doctoral fellowships. Graduate students in the humanities may apply only for pre-doctoral fellowships. Previous winners of the Rome Prize are not eligible to re-apply. Undergraduate students are not eligible for Rome Prize fellowships.

Michigan Humanities Council

Michigan Humanities Council grants emphasize collaboration among cultural, educational, and community-based organizations and institutions to serve the people of Michigan with public humanities programming. These grants play a vital role in defining our culture, our state, our community, and ourselves. Organizations are encouraged to explore and retrace our histories, roles in societies, advancements and changes, meaning in self-expression and fulfillment, commonalities and differences.

Major Grants (up to $15,000): Up to $15,000 is awarded per major grant. A draft may be submitted for Council staff to review and provide feedback up to two weeks before the deadline.

Quick Grants (up to $500) and Planning Grants (up to $1,000): The Michigan Humanities Council provides support for public humanities programs that fall outside the design and deadline schedules of the major grants. To help meet these requests and to match humanities resources and professionals with local needs, the Council offers Quick Grants and Planning Grants. Quick Grants provide up to $500 and Planning Grants provide up to $1,000 to Michigan-based, nonprofit organizations for public humanities programs or services. Planning grants cover expenses involved in developing a public humanities program that will result in a non-profit applying for a Council major grant. Organizations may only receive one quick or planning grant per year and the project activities must be free or very low cost and open to the public.

Arts & Humanities Touring Program Grants (up to 40% of expenses or $3,000): Michigan’s Arts & Humanities Touring Directory represents 204 of our state’s most talented performing and visual artists and humanities presenters. It provides schools, libraries, museums, civic and service groups, festival organizers, and other Michigan nonprofits a wide variety of cultural programming in the fields of dance, music, storytelling, theater, and traditional and visual arts. The Touring Program grants are available to nonprofit organizations who may request up to 40 percent of presenters’/exhibitors’ fees and travel expenses. Request for a grant may not exceed $3,000 per application, and an organization may not submit more than four grant applications or request more than $4,000 in a fiscal year.

SUPPORT FOR INTERNATIONAL STUDENTS

A small number of programs provide financial support specifically to foreign students. In most cases, their aims are relatively specialized. Among such programs are:

Social Science Research Council
(www.ssrc.org)

Wenner-Gren Foundation
(www.wennergren.org)

International Research & Exchanges Board (IREX)
(www.irex.org)

The following gives a brief overview of sources of support accessible to foreign students. Foreign students should also consult with the International Center, the Graduate Program Manager, and their faculty advisors.

Most sources of University support are not restricted with regard to citizenship. Thus, GSA appointments (GSI, RA), Rackham Fellowships, Block Grants, and French and Griffin Awards are open to all applicants.

The following sources of support allocated through the University are restricted to US citizens and/or residents: Regents Fellowships, Work-Study, and FLAS Fellowships. As a rule, minority fellowships are not open to non-US citizens, while fellowships in support of women often are accessible to foreign students.

Rackham International Students Fellowship

The Rackham International Student Fellowship assists outstanding international students, particularly those who may be ineligible for other kinds of support because of citizenship. Nominees must have a strong academic record, be making good progress toward the degree, and demonstrate outstanding academic and professional promise. Awards of $10,000 may be used as stipend or tuition. Students may receive this award only once. Twenty-five (25) awards will be available in 2012/2013.

Eligibility:
Any student enrolled in a Rackham program on the Ann Arbor campus. Preference will be given to students who do not have other sources of funding. U.S. citizens and permanent residents are not eligible. May nominate up to two international graduate students who have successfully completed one year of graduate study and are in good academic standing as a master's or precandidate.

Wenner-Gren Foundation Wadsworth International Fellowships

The Wadsworth International Fellowships are intended to provide support for students undertaking study leading to a Ph.D. or equivalent doctoral degree at universities where they can receive international-level training in anthropology. These fellowships are available only to students from countries where anthropology is underrepresented and where there are limited resources to send students overseas for training (*see website for list). The Wadsworth program's main goal is to expand and strengthen international ties and enhance anthropological infrastructure in these countries. Because of this, priority is given to applicants who have not already begun graduate training abroad, and who are likely to return to an academic position in their home country upon completion of their degree. The purpose of the Wadsworth International Fellowship is to offer support for students who are in the early stages of their doctoral programs.

The annual fellowship is $17,500 and can be used towards travel, living expenses, tuition, income taxes, student fees, insurance, books, research expenses and any other relevant categories of expenditure while studying at the Host Institution. The fellowship is renewable for up to two additional years upon successful completion of each preceding year's study/training.

Susan Lipschutz/ Margaret Ayers Host/ Anna Olcott Smith Award for Women Graduate Students

The Susan Lipschutz Fund for Women Graduate Students was established to honor the memory of Dr. Susan Lipschutz, former Senior Associate Dean of the Graduate School and Associate Provost for Academic Affairs. The Susan Lipschutz Fund recognizes and supports promising women scholars.

Margaret Ayers Host received a Rackham degree in 1942. She studied at Oxford, was President of the Alumni Association, Chair of the Alumnae Council, member of the Board in Control of Intercollegiate Athletics, and a member of the Rackham Board of Governors. The Margaret Ayers Host Award was established to honor her remarkable contributions as a woman scholar and to the University of Michigan community.

Ella Smith Avery made a gift in 1938 in order to honor the memory of her mother and to support women graduate students at the University of Michigan. According to the terms of the gift, the Anna Olcott Smith Fellowship Endowment is intended to aid women graduate students who show “promise of the development of useful original ideas.”

At least six $5,000 awards will be made for Spring/Summer support. Based on the availability of funds, additional awards may be made during the competition process.

Eligibility:
Any Rackham doctoral program may nominate only one student for the combined competition. Nominees must be women actively pursuing a doctoral degree who have achieved candidacy by the application deadline. Students may receive this award only one time.

Center for the Education of Women (CEW) Student Research Grant

The Center for the Education of Women announces the availability of CEW Student Research Grants of up to $1,000 for student-designed, student-conducted academic research on topics related to CEW’s mission. These awards are intended for University of Michigan—Ann Arbor graduate students and upper division undergraduate students who are doing degree-required dissertation or thesis research.

Acceptable research topics have a gender focus, in such areas as leadership, education and careers, growth and development, health and well-being, political and social status, and similar areas of gender-based interest.

We cannot award grants to support travel for conference attendance and presentations. Nor can we support travel and activities that are primarily for experiential learning, service learning, internships, study abroad programs, or similar enrichment programs not specifically tied to degree-required, student-designed research.

National Italian American Foundation

The National Italian American Foundation (NIAF) has an education budget of about $1 million. The NIAF will award scholarships and grants to outstanding students in the summer for use during the following academic year. The awards will be made on the basis of academic merit and divided between two groups of students:

General Category I - Italian American students who demonstrate outstanding potential and high academic achievements. Area of study is open; and,

General Category II - Those students from any ethnic background majoring or minoring in Italian language, Italian studies, Italian American studies or a related field, who demonstrate outstanding potential and high academic achievements.

Scholarship awards range from $2,000-$12,000. Each scholarship award can only cover tuition and university-provided room and board. Scholarship recipients are eligible for one year of scholarship support. Scholarship monies not used during one academic year are not transferable to the following academic year. Scholarship applicants and winners can and are encouraged to reapply in subsequent years.

Rackham Merit Fellowship

The Rackham Merit Fellowship (RMF) Program helps sustain the academic excellence and inclusiveness of the Michigan graduate community, one that embraces students with diverse experiences and goals, and who come from many educational, cultural, geographic, and familial backgrounds. By offering financial assistance to those students who might not otherwise have access, we aim to reduce disparities in graduate education. We also aim to promote the values of diversity and inclusion by encouraging the admission and funding of students who represent a broad array of life experiences and perspectives, because this enhances the quality of the intellectual environment for all students.

Eligibility:
The Rackham Merit Fellowship is open to newly admitted students in a Rackham graduate degree program who: have a record of superior academic achievement (e.g., grade point average, honors, or other designation); are U.S. citizens or permanent residents; And meet one or more of the following criteria: come from an educational, cultural or geographic background that is underrepresented in graduate study in their discipline in the United States or at the University of Michigan; have demonstrated commitment to diversity in the academic, professional, or civic realm through their work experience, volunteer engagement, or leadership of student or community organizations. By diversity, we mean efforts to reduce social, educational or economic disparities based on race, ethnicity or gender, or to improve race relations in the U.S.; have experienced financial hardship as a result of family economic circumstances; are first-generation U.S. citizens or are the first generation in their families to graduate from a four-year college.

King/Chavez/Parks (KCP)

The King-Chavez-Parks Future Faculty Fellowship Program is funded by the State of Michigan and is intended to increase the pool of traditionally underrepresented candidates pursuing faculty teaching careers in postsecondary education. Preference may not be given to applicants on the basis of race, color, ethnicity, gender, or national origin. Applications are encouraged from minorities, women, people with disabilities, and individuals from cultural, linguistic, geographic, and socio-economic backgrounds who would otherwise not adequately be represented in the graduate student and faculty populations.

The amount of the KCP Future Faculty Fellowship Award will depend on the student's financial needs. The maximum available award is $20,000 for master's students and $35,000 for doctoral students. The award can be used as a stipend or to help pay tuition.

Eligibility:
To be eligible, an applicant must be: admitted to study in a master's or doctoral program at the University of Michigan; in good academic standing; not currently a recipient of a KCP Initiative Fellowship Award at another institution; have not received another KCP Fellowship award for the same degree level (master's or doctorate); not currently in default status on any guaranteed student loan and/or a KCP Loan; a citizen of the United States; a resident of the State of Michigan who meets the University of Michigan's requirements for residency; planning and able to teach in postsecondary education.

Gaius Charles Bolin Dissertation and Post-MFA Fellowships

The Gaius Charles Bolin Fellowships at Williams College are designed to promote diversity on college faculties by encouraging students from underrepresented groups to complete a terminal graduate degree and to pursue careers in college teaching. The Bolin Fellowships are two-year residencies at Williams, and up to three scholars or artists are appointed each year. Fellows devote the bulk of the first year to the completion of dissertation work—or in the case of MFA applicants, building their professional portfolios—while also teaching one course as a faculty member in one of the College’s academic departments or programs. The second year of residency (ideally with degree in hand) is spent on academic career development while again teaching just one course. Gaius Charles Bolin was the first black graduate of Williams. The fellowship program was founded in 1985, on the centennial of his admission to the College.

The annual stipend for the position is $33,000. The College will also provide health and dental benefits, housing assistance, academic support including office space and computer and library privileges, and an allowance of up to $4,000 for research-related expenses. During the period of residence at Williams, the Bolin Fellows will be affiliated with an appropriate department or program, and will be expected to teach one one-semester course each year, normally in the fall semester of year one and the spring semester of year two.

Eligibility:
The Bolin Fellowships are awarded to applicants from underrepresented groups, including ethnic minorities, those who are first-generation college graduates, women in predominantly male fields, or disabled scholars. Applicants must be U.S. citizens or permanent residents who intend to pursue a professorial career in the U.S. PhD candidates must have completed all doctoral work except the dissertation by the end of the current academic year. MFA candidates must be recent recipients of the degree; only those with degrees granted in 2011, or to be granted in 2012, are eligible to apply.

Ford Foundation Postdoctoral Fellowships

Postdoctoral fellowships will be awarded in a national competition administered by the National Research Council (NRC) on behalf of the Ford Foundation. The awards will be made to individuals who, in the judgment of the review panels, have demonstrated superior academic achievement, are committed to a career in teaching and research at the college or university level, show promise of future achievement as scholars and teachers, and are well prepared to use diversity as a resource for enriching the education of all students. This year the program will award approximately 18 postdoctoral fellowships. The tenure of a postdoctoral fellowship will be no less than 9 months and no more than 12 months, with tenure beginning no earlier than June 1st and no later than September 1st. Postdoctoral fellowships may not be deferred or delayed.

The Fellowships includes: a one-year stipend of $40,000. The stipend may be supplemented by sabbatical leave pay or other sources of support that do not carry with them teaching or other responsibilities. Fellowship funds may be disbursed through the employing institution if necessary for the continuation of health insurance or other benefits. No dependency allowance is available; an employing institution allowance of $1,500. This allowance will be paid to the fellow’s employing institution after fellowship tenure is completed. The employing institution will be asked to provide a matching amount and to use the allowance and the match to assist with the fellow’s continuing research expenses; expenses paid to attend one Conference of Ford Fellows; access to Ford Fellow Liaisons, a network of former Ford Fellows who have volunteered to provide mentoring and support to current fellows.

Eligibility:
Eligibility to apply for a postdoctoral fellowship is limited to all citizens or nationals of the United States regardless of race, national origin, religion, gender, age, disability, or sexual orientation; individuals with evidence of superior academic achievement (such as grade point average, class rank, honors or other designations); individuals committed to a career in teaching and research at the college or university level; and individuals awarded a Ph.D. or Sc.D. degree no earlier than November 30, 2003 and no later than November 8, 2010 (*last year’s dates) in an eligible research-based field from a U.S. educational institution.

Chancellor's Postdoctoral Fellowship Program for Academic Diversity

The Chancellor's Postdoctoral Fellowship Program for Academic Diversity offers postdoctoral research fellowships and faculty mentoring to qualified scholars in all fields whose research, teaching, and service will contribute to the diversity and equal opportunity at the University of California. These contributions may include public service addressing the needs of our increasingly diverse society, efforts to advance equitable access to higher education for women and minorities, or research focusing on underserved populations or understanding issues of racial or gender inequalities. The program is seeking applicants with the potential to bring to their academic careers the critical perspective that comes from their non-traditional educational background or understanding of the experiences of groups historically underrepresented in higher education.

Awards will be made to applicants who show promise for tenure-track appointments on the Berkeley campus. The Fellowship will be for up to two academic years, in residence at the Berkeley campus. The annual award provides a salary of $41,496. The award also includes health insurance, vision and dental benefits, four weeks paid time off and up to $4,000 for research-related and program travel expenses. Each award is for a 12-month period, renewable for one year upon demonstration of academic productivity and participation in program events.
