In the past 10 years the program of Bosnian/Croatian/Serbian at U-M has constantly been expanding, and the number of students enrolling the course offerings is on the rise. U-M’s Slavic Department ranks among the top three schools in the United States according to the number of students enrolled in the study of BCS.

BCS Language is the material studied in the courses offered at the U-M’s Slavic Department. First and Second Year B/C/S, as well as Independent Reading in BCS are the courses taught by Marija Rosić. She teaches BCS First and Second Year, as well as the Independent Reading course, focusing on language skills and introducing all three variants during the 2-year program.
